CITY TO ESTABLISH NEW RECORD IN BUILDING

ALLIED WAR CRAFT DEFY ORDERS OF TURKISH RULERS

More Than Score at Anchor Off Smyrna With Guns Turned Upon City

BULLETIN

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The British government is without confirmation from General Harrington, British commander at Constantinople, that the Turks have issued a new "ultimatum" to foreign warships to leave Smyrna harbor, it was announced by the foreign office this afternoon.

BULLETIN

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Allied warship commanders at Smyrna are negotiating with the Turkish authorities for harbor facilities, said Smyrna advices to the French foreign office this afternoon. Foreign office officials said this indicated that the situation at Smyrna was improving.

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The allied naval commanders at Smyrna will reject the new Turkish "ultimatum" that the foreign warships in the harbor must leave within three days, according to reliable news from Constantinople this afternoon. The original Turkish demand that all foreign warships of more than 1000 tons leave the Smyrna harbor was issued one week ago today, expiring Tuesday night. It was extended until Wednesday night and eventually a temporary agreement was reached, but apparently the Turks have withdrawn from it.

Admiral Nicholson of the British navy, in defiance of the Turks, has swept up a number of mines planted by the Turkish naval authorities near the entrance of the Smyrna harbor. There is now a clear passage for the warships, the admiralty has been advised.

Negotiations between the Turkish and allied authorities are continuing at Constantinople. Foreign office officials expressed the hope that a final agreement could be effected at the conference of Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation in the Near East peace conference and the allied high commissioners later in the week.

More than a score of foreign warships are at anchor off Smyrna with their guns turned on the city. British dreadnaughts are cruising outside the harbor. A number of sloops bearing machine guns are lying off the Smyrna piers.

Rigorous Treatment

PARIS, Feb. 12.—France has yielded to Belgium's insistence for more rigorous treatment of Germany, it was learned this afternoon from sources close to the government.

When Premier Poincare goes to Belgium later in the week final details will be added to a stern economic military program designed to force Germany to yield to Franco-Belgian demands in the Rhineland or go to her knees in financial and industrial collapse.

Open Diplomacy Is Program of Japan's U. S. Ambassador

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—Announcing that he came as an advocate of open diplomacy and as a believer in laying all the cards on the table, with all above board, Masanao Hanihari, new Japanese ambassador to Washington arrived here today. He arrived twenty-four hours after Ambassador Charles Beecher Warren, American envoy to Tokio, had reached the United States and announced that all Pacific misunderstandings had been cleared up.

Ambassador Hanihara declared that he had no instructions from the Japanese government to reopen the immigration question, but was, of course, prepared to discuss it, if the United States government should desire to do so.

Japan, he said, did not question the right of the American congress to pass any legislation it desired with reference to immigration but admitted Japan would not look kindly on legislation which would discriminate against the Japanese race in particular.

CIVIL WAR VETS HONOR COMRADES

Impressive Ceremony Held By Grand Army Men And Allied Bodies

Under the shadow of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, beautiful and fitting ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon, February 11, at 3 o'clock, in the G. A. R. hall on South Glendale avenue, by the local posts of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Women's Relief Corps and the Sons and Daughters of Veterans, to commemorate the passage within the last year of thirteen Comrades, eight Sisters and one Son.

Comrade Rev. C. R. Norton, patriotic instructor, had charge of the meeting, and in the absence of Comrade Rev. George F. LeClere, led the prayers as well.

Commander T. M. Barrett of the G. A. R., delivered an impressive address on "The Unselfish Loyalty of the Soldiers of '61." President Mrs. Flora Pixley of the W. R. C., spoke for those who had passed beyond. Mrs. Davis said a few words of eulogy. Mrs. Kretchner followed her. Comrade C. H. Clark delivered a plea for loyalty and good comradeship, in talking of those who had departed.

Honor Missing Comrades

The musical program included singing of "Rock of Ages," "When the Roll is Called up Yonder," "We Shall Meet But We Shall Miss Them," and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Flowers were placed on the vacant seats and the benediction said—and once more the old comrades and their faithful sisters, daughters and sons looked at one another through eyes misted with tears, then gazed upward to the Goal and smiled bravely, as they took their departure from that hall of many memories.

Reports of Germany's War Plans Are Denied

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Minister of Defense Gessler today informed the reichstag there was no truth in the reports that Germany is preparing for war as a result of the seizure of the Ruhr.

"We could not make war preparations because we have no money," said Minister Gessler. "We have no intention of trying to make war preparations. We are helpless without arms and without funds."

Uncle John Says:

I see in The Glendale Evening News that City Manager Reeves has endorsed the "Trade at Home" movement and has instructed all them that work for the city to buy supplies in Glendale. Mary says it would be ridiculous to take the city's money and spend it outside for something that could be got in Glendale and she thinks City Manager Reeves has done just right. She says she is goin' to tell him so, too.

Heavy Storm Hits Pacific Northwest

RECORD FOR RAIN IS FAR BEHIND MARK IN 1922

Total of 8.99 Inches So Far This Season; Heavy Fall Of Snow in North

Gradually the 1923 seasonal rain record for Glendale is creeping upward but even yet there's a good ways to go before the 1922 seasonal record is reached.

On Saturday and Sunday .66 of an inch was added to the present record bringing it up to 8.99 inches for 1923. One year ago today the season was given credit for 20.97 inches.

Heavy Snow Fall

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—One of the heaviest falls of snow of the season today mantled the Pacific coast.

In the Pacific northwest, according to reports to the weather bureau, from four to eight inches of snow fell throughout Washington. Oregon had snow flurries on the coast and a regular snowfall in the east.

California mountain regions reported heavy falls.

Gales from the northwest accompanied the snowfall. Considerable damage was done telegraph and telephone lines. Communication with the east was hampered and difficulty was also had in maintaining the lines north.

Much Wire Trouble

Reports to the weather bureau told of heavy snows in Idaho. Due to the condition of communication reports were slow in reaching the weather bureau today.

Telephone and telegraph companies reported breaks in a half dozen places in their system in in Northern California due to heavy snows.

Exceptionally heavy snow caused a break in the eastern trunk wires at Colfax. Telephone officials had a large force of linemen there repairing the break.

START RACE FOR PAGEANT QUEEN

Veteran Showman to Direct Contest for Ruler of Ten-Day Exposition

The latest recruit to the ranks of the executive staff in charge of the plans for Glendale Merchants' Industrial Exposition, to be held here in May, is Joseph Geisler, who will have charge of the contest for the position of queen of the pageant. Mr. Geisler is a circus man of life-long experience, and he has also managed similar contests in many sections of the country, so that the success of Glendale's queen contest is regarded as assured from the very start.

Any candidates for the honor of reigning over the exposition as queen are requested to submit their photographs and their names to Mr. Geisler at Room 7, Monarch building, South Brand and Harvard, where Harry L. Leavitt, the promoter of the exposition, has established his headquarters and from where the details of the project will be handled.

May Give Coupons

It has been suggested that those merchants who are interested in the success of the exposition should give coupons entitling the holders to vote in the contest for queen, that they may support their candidates in the race, and this suggestion will be developed shortly after the matter has been worked out in detail and has been laid before the merchants.

Announcement is expected daily of the selection of a site for the exposition, and as soon as a definite decision has been reached on this point the work of preparing for the various exhibits will be launched. Promoter Leavitt declares that the expanse of tentage that will be used to house the exhibits and the various shows that will appear here during the ten days that the pageant will last will put any three ring circus in the country in the shade.

Ship Subsidy Bill Near End of Fight; Vote Will Be Close

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The administration's ship subsidy bill, heralded by its supporters as the only means of saving the American merchant marine from destruction, today entered the closing stages of the long fight for its enactment.

A series of legislative obstacles faced the measure in the form of test votes which must be hurled in the next two or three days to insure its passage by the present congress. If supporters of the bill are defeated on only one of the tests, all chances for ultimate enactment probably will be lost. While administration forces were still hopeful as they rallied their ranks for the test vote, there was no assurance their fight would be successful.

One ray of hope appeared today in a report that "farm bloc" Republicans, hitherto unequivocally opposed to the bill, would give it their support if it were amended to subsidize only cargo ships. This proposed amendment, however, did not meet the favor of Democratic opponents.

Father of Free State Minister Is Murdered

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—Dr. Thomas O'Higgins was assassinated today.

Dr. O'Higgins was the father of Kevin O'Higgins, minister of home affairs in the Free State government.

On Saturday Kevin O'Higgins had given an exclusive interview to International News Service declaring women sympathizers of the republican movement had goaded Eamonn de Valera into "unloosing anarchy upon the country and that anarchy would be met with force." He made plain that the Free State was prepared to intensify its warfare against the republicans.

Six Die as Gas Main Spreads Deadly Fumes

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 12.—Six are dead and a dozen others were overcome this morning when a gas main broke in the business center of Pittman, fifteen miles southeast of here, covering several blocks with deadly fumes.

The entire family of William Bucci, a shoemaker, was wiped out. The six bodies were found by rescue workers. Firemen and citizens working with volunteer rescuers were overcome. An emergency hospital set up in the center of town was crowded with victims. Pulmotors are being used to revive them.

COLLEGE WOMEN'S CLUB MEETS FOR SOCIAL SESSION

Permanent Organization Is Under Way; Entertainment Varied, Pleasing

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

Records of a second meeting were written down Saturday in the beginning history of the Glendale College Women's club, which met in the Chamber of Commerce hall for a luncheon, a short business session and a program of entertainment. There were sixty-nine university and college women included in the company, that represented higher institutions of learning in all parts of the United States.

A further step in the permanent organization of the club was evident in the announcement by Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, president, that the charter was closed Saturday. This entitles all women attending the first or second meetings and expressing a desire to become members of the club, to become charter members upon the payment of dues and signing the club charter. All future applicants for membership must have their names submitted to the club directorate on application blanks, to be presented to the club vote.

Informal Social Hour

The luncheon Saturday, which was served at 12:30 o'clock was preceded by a most enjoyable informal social hour. Alumnae of the various colleges and universities gathered in groups to visit and upon the arrival of newcomers they were presented to those already present. Each woman was tagged with a card bearing her name, her school and her degree.

Luncheon was enjoyed about tables arranged in the form of a hollow square and decorated with vases of pale pink carnations.

Mrs. Ferguson announced the business session at the close of the luncheon hour.

The first matter considered was the appointment of chairmen of the standing committees. In the by-laws drawn up at the first meeting no provision was made

Attempts Suicide in Fit of Despondency

A neighbor called upon Mrs. Sterling, and, entering the house, found her lying upon the floor with her head over a gas heater which had been turned on full force but left unlighted.

She was taken in the ambulance of L. G. Scovern to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital where she was rescusitated. It was reported this morning that she would recover.

Assistant President For C. of C. Arrives

Glendale now has an active assistant president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Really it has, also a salesman of Lincoln cars and Lincoln pups.

Jesse Edward Smith, Jr., weighing in at eight pounds ringside, made his debut at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital yesterday afternoon at 1:10 o'clock.

Father took the knockout very well, recuperating about dinner hour. Mrs. Jesse E. Smith of 651 North Central avenue is reported doing nicely.

And little Margaret Rita now has a brother.

So everybody's satisfied.

RODOLPH ADMITS IT

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—"I am nothing but a love maker," sighed Rodolph Valentino here today. While awaiting a train to St. Louis, the "Sheik" revealed that he has a wild inclination to go about smashing the jaws of men who sneer at his tender screen portrayals. He wants to play the more rugged parts.

Got Flat Feet? If So Try Sidewalk in Front Of Jensen Drug Store

By GEORGE

FLAT-FOOTED? Someone is, and he tells the following story:

"Walked by Jensen's Drug Store last night on that new kind of sidewalk they have installed and I forgot my arches were 'broken.'"

Maybe he was looking into the windows like Uncle John and Aunt Mary like to do.

Anyway, he says, says he, "If you got flat feet go up and try that sidewalk."

Not having flat feet, we went up and sat down on it, we did.

And it felt kinda springy and comfortable, but it sure was cold.

Then a cop came along and says, says he, "If you can't stand up, I can't let you sit out here in front of drug store—not in Glendale."

So we beat it back to the office to tell the boss if he wants the story he can hire a flat-footed reporter. We ain't!

PLAY READER TO TELL OF DISRAELI

Artistic Interpretation of Character of Diplomat At Tuesday Club

After a two-weeks' intermission the Tuesday Afternoon club members are to gather tomorrow afternoon for a regular meeting in the Masonic temple auditorium.

The entertainment pleasure of the afternoon will be the appearance of Arthur Kachel, master play reader, who will give a studied and artistic interpretation of the character of "Disraeli," the great diplomat of Great Britain.

"In Disraeli you have your love story, your historical parallel, and, best of all, your epigrammatic dialogues," says David Belasco, and it is this story that Mr. Kachel interprets in his portrayal of the well known Englishman.

Three Other Features

Preceding the regular meeting hour there will be three events of interest to the club members. Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of the ways and means committee, has issued a call for all the non-section club members to meet with her at 1 o'clock to organize a group for assisting in raising money for the clubhouse building and furnishing fund.

There will also be the usual hour of community singing led by Hugo Kirchhofer, and a cooked sale directed by Mrs. Colin Cable.

Another feature of the club meeting will be the shower of dish towels for the new clubhouse. This part of the meeting is under the auspices of the linen committee, with Mrs. Lillian Dow as chairman. Each club member is asked to bring either a sugar sack or a flour sack to the meeting tomorrow.

Alguin in Irons Near End of Long Journey

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 12.—With an eighteen-pound Oregon boot locked about his ankle and otherwise shackled, "Little Phil" Alguin, alleged slayer of Detective Sergeant J. J. Fitzgerald in Los Angeles over a year ago, passed through here this morning en route to Los Angeles in custody of Chief of Police L. D. Oaks of the coast city and several guards.

The young prisoner slept well last night, the officers said, and enjoyed a hearty breakfast.

"I did not kill Fitzgerald, because I was at a dance at the time he was shot," Alguin declared.

In the Oaks party is Mrs. Catherine Uribe, a former "Follies" beauty, whom the officers credit with bringing about the deportation of Alguin from Mexico. Mrs. Uribe's husband and a brother-in-law are now held in the Los Angeles county jail on a charge of stealing an automobile, but it is understood they will be released in return for the assistance Mrs. Uribe gave in bringing about the return of Alguin to American soil.

All during the forenoon floral offerings continued to pour into the church and the space about the altar was filled with a profusion of flowers.

GREAT PROSPERITY FOR GLENDALE IN PERMIT ISSUE, SAYS OFFICIAL

Manager W. H. Reeves Says Million Dollar Months Are in Sight Here

THREE "million dollar months" are in sight for Glendale's building activity this spring, according to W. H. Reeves, city manager.

January broke all records with approximately $1,020,000, and February promises to do the same with the high school permit included.

In March it is expected that the new six story Security Trust bank office building will be under way and put that month over the million mark.

The city is aiding in every way possible to see Glendale go ahead full speed this year and numerous large projects are in the offing which will keep this city third in southern California.

In a table prepared by the Southwest Builder and Contractor of current issue only Los Angeles and San Diego exceeded "the fastest growing city in America."

This morning ground was broken for a market building at 233-235 South Brand boulevard, adjoining the Buick agency. R. L. Kent and A. L. Baird are the owners.

Plenty of Room

Two weeks more remain in February for builders to get busy and put over the program, if they will. And for those who are the least skeptical, Mr. Reeves suggests they go out and look at the construction work now being done on the Glendale Sanitarium site or at the new high school grounds where foundations are being laid.

Coincident with building is the apparent fact that Glendale and vicinity are undergoing the greatest subdivision era in history. It is estimated there are three lots here for every family, so get busy and write your friends "there is plenty of room in Glendale."

ANDREW J. LARSON, REALTOR, PASSES

Dies at His Home in This City After Short Illness; Bond Issue Expert

Andrew J. Larson, aged 43, well known here as a realtor and bearing a state-wide reputation as a municipal bond expert, died this morning, Monday, February 12, 1923, at his home, 371 West Lexington drive, after a brief illness.

Mr. Larson was a member of the real estate firm of Endicott & Larson, 116 South Brand boulevard, but he conducted their special offices in the Glendale shops building, 142 South Brand boulevard, where assessment districts and bond issues were worked out through his thorough knowledge of property values.

For a number of years, prior to associating with Mr. Endicott he was employed in the bureau of assessments by the city of Los Angeles where he established himself as an authority and was often called into conference in recent years.

Funeral Date Not Set

Born in Mindon, Nebraska, on June 16, 1879, Mr. Larson had just reached the prime of life when stricken a few days ago with the illness which proved fatal. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Bertha E. Larson, and one daughter Miss Janice B. Larson. His mother, Mrs. Bessie L. Cook, also is a resident of Glendale.

Accepted to Masonry in Hollenbeck lodge, F. & A. M., Mr. Larson was a beloved brother. He also was a member of Los Angeles Grotto, the Royal Arcanum and Woodmen of the World. As a citizen he was a sterling example of a thorough business man whose acquaintance and friendship was keenly appreciated by all who knew him.

Funeral arrangements are being made with Kiefer & Eyerick. The Endicott & Larson offices are closed pending the obsequies.

Glendale Man Tells Of Great Gloom Cast Over Army By Death Of Lincoln

SHADOW FALLS ON WHOLE COUNTRY, SAYS SOLDIER

Commander T. M. Barrett of Local Post on Duty During Trial

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Member of Evening News Staff

One hundred and fourteen years ago today, February 12, 1809, a baby son was born in a log cabin, near Hogdenville, Larue county, Ky., to a farmer and his wife named Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln.

Today that man child, Abraham Lincoln, is immortal, together with that cabin where he grew and g ained the first light of wisdom out of books brorowed and bought, in return for the services of his strong young body; and the simple words he uttered on many occasions, from the passion that burned in his breast for humanity are graven not only on stone and preserved in libraries the world over, but are blazoned upon the consciousness of all mankind.

Welded by War

Whatever proud position the United States of America holds today among the nations of the earth is due to the genius, the patience and the supreme love of Abraham Lincoln, for he took the warring factions of north and south, white and black, and welded them together "one and inseparable," in the white fire of a great war, so that "government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

But Lincoln never lived to see how well he had done his work. On the night of April 14, 1965, at Ford's Theatre, Washington, D. C., he was shot down by John Wilkes Booth, a little, bitter, ineffectual whom modern psychoanalysis would have shown to be sub-normal.

Public Heart-broken

It is true that vengeance was had. Booth was tracked by bloodhounds to a barn near Fredericksburg, and captured by Sergeant Boston Corbett, on the twenty-sixth of the same month. But the American public was still heart-broken and desolated by its loss, that only the slow years could soften.

"Next to the destruction of the confederacy, the death of Abraham Lincoln was the darkest day the south has known." Those words were spoken by the one man most directly opposed to Lincoln during the great struggle, Jefferson Davis, and they show how the south felt. Picture then the grief of the north.

Terrible Gloom

Commander T. M. Barrett, of Glendale post, the G. A. R., gives a vivid description of that sorrowful time.

"I was stationed at Springfield, Ill., with Company K of the Eighth Regiment of the First Army corps, when, on April 14, 1865, the news came of the assassination of our president, Abraham Lincoln. I cannot begin to tell you what the effect was. It cast a terrible gloom over the entire camp. I saw many of the boys with tears in their eyes, begging to know if there could not be the possibility of some mistake.

Idolized by Army

"Why, Lincoln was idolized by the army. We called him "Father Abraham," and it was a term of love and reverence. To have our great leader stricken down, in the very midst of the first sunshine we had seen in four long years, was bitter beyond telling. Here we were rejoicing over glorious victories just barely won—when suddenly the cup was dashed to the ground.

"I at least had the satisfaction of being ordered with my regiment to Washington, where we were on active duty until May 6 of that year, or until the trial ended in the conviction and hanging of the assassin. But none of us ever quite recovered from that dark shadow that fell on the Grand Army — and none of us ever will."

MEMORIES By Morris

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address

FOURSCORE and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

EAGLE ROCK LOCALS

The big letter "O" being built by the Pi Ephilon engineers of Occidental college at the top of the hill back of the college now looms up in fine shape for several miles around. The letter will be painted orange and black when completed and if possible, will be illuminated at night, particularly on special occasions. The letter may easily be seen from the beach, say the students who are erecting the huge emblem.

Thirty children of the Methodist church Sunday school enjoyed a picnic at Sycamore park Saturday afternoon under the direction of Rev. E. J. Bradner, Mr. Wallace, Mrs. Anderson and Miss Irene Miller. The children were shown through the museum and other interesting places. These are the boys and girls that are assisting in the singing at the revival services at the church.

Members of the Eastern Star of Eagle Rock will have a rehearsal at Masonic hall Tuesday evening before Grand Deputy Mrs. Florence Higgins of Pasadena, in preparation for the meeting of the grand officers which will be held in Glendale the latter part of February.

A number of alleged violators of the traffic laws appeared before Judge Harold Ide Cruzan when court was called at 9:30 Saturday morning. All cases were disposed of before noon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Allen Moohr of 138 Pearl street were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Smith, of West Alhambra, who were celebrating their twentieth wedding anniversary at the Women's club house at 1700 Main street, Los Angeles Sunday evening. A large number of invited guests were present. A novel feature of the celebration was that the invitations were in exact duplicate of the ones for their marriage twenty years ago.

Miss Jennie Swenson accompanied by a party of friends from Pasadena spent Sunday on a hiking trip in Topanga canyon.

This being a legal holiday the board of trustees will not meet until tomorrow evening. All departments but the polic are taking a vacation today.

ONE OF LINCOLN'S LETTERS SHOWN IN EAGLE ROCK

Descendant of Recipient Permits Exhibit of Treasured Relic

What purports to be a letter written from the executive mansion, Washington, D. C., by President Abraham Lincoln on December 4, 1861, to Mrs. Susannah Weathers, Rossville, Clinton county, Indiana, is being displayed today in the window of G. W. Macomber, jeweler, at 111 East Colorado boulevard, Eagle Rock. The letter is appropriately draped in flags.

The letter belongs to Mrs. W. Wittefelt, 125 North Castle avenue, Eagle Rock, and has been in the family since Mrs. Weathers received it sixty-one years ago. It is highly prized by the present owner, who has had numerous offers to dispose of it, but has refused to part with her prize or have a photo taken of it. Mrs. Weathers was an aunt of Mrs. Wittefeld's father.

Letter Well Preserved

The letter is written in the characteristic long hand of the martyred president and is in a splendid state of preservation. It was sent in acknowledgment of a pair of woolen socks Mrs. Weathers had knit and sent to the president, and acknowledges a letter he had received from her on November 26, 1861.

The president thanked her for the present and said there were no sox that compared with those knit from soft wool produced in the southern states. The letter also stated that the president thought he was a relative by marriage of Mrs. Weathers; that Ralph Greene had married Mary Lincoln, a sister of President Lincoln's father, sixty years before. Mrs. Weathers' maiden name was Greene, and she was reared in Washington county, Virginia.

HONOR BIRTHDAY OF EMANCIPATOR

Abraham Lincoln Is Subject Of Special Exercises in Local Schools

Glendale school children are giving recognition today to the 114th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth president of the United States. As is the custom in schools in all parts of the United States, pictures of Lincoln are given honored places with those of George Washington, our first president.

Another feature of this dual honor is that the birthdays of the two presidents both come in February, ten days apart, and on February 22 American school children will pay honor to the other great American.

Abraham Lincoln was born February 12, 1809, near Hodgenville, Larue county, Kentucky. His ancestry was English and during his early life his vocation was that of a farmhand.

Elected President

At the time of his election to the presidency he was practicing law in Springfield, Ill. He was a Republican and was inaugurated at the age of 52 years. Lincoln had four sons.

It was on April 15, 1865, that President Lincoln was assassinated in a theatre in Washington, D. C., and died at the age of 56.

His body was taken to Springfield, Ill., and buried in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Harding and Heads Departments to Pay Tribute to Lincoln

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The birthday of Abraham Lincoln was celebrated today in many patriotic and memorial gatherings participated in by public officials and prominent citizens.

The government itself conducted business as usual, Lincoln's birthday not being a holiday in the District of Columbia, although it is in some states.

President Harding and members of the cabinet will pay their respects to the emancipator tonight at a dinner given by the members and trustees of the Lincoln Memorial university.

The president will speak and other addresses will be delivered by Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of the Navy Denby, and Senator Watson of Indiana.

STUDENTS HONOR ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Martyred President's Life And Achievements Are Told in Schools

Patriotic exercises in honor of Abraham Lincoln are being held today in all the schools of Glendale.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, stated this morning that so far as he knew every grammar school in Glendale was having an appropriate program.

Geroge U. Moyse, principal of the high school, said that the exercises there were being conducted in the roll rooms.

Pupils Pay Tribute

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—Simple ceremonies marked San Francisco's observance today of the 114th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, great emancipator and martyred president.

The public schools devoted the day to honoring Lincoln's memory. Prominent public men eulogized his career and told of his life and achievements for mankind.

State and city public offices were closed and many places of business and industries observed the holiday with cessation of work.

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 12.—T. B. Connory, formerly a New York journalist and magazine writer, died here at the age of 86.

SPEEDER IS GIVEN MINIMUM FINE BY JUSTICE

Exchanges Between Accused And Officer Enliven Eagle Rock Trial

Fred Ries of Glendale appeared in Judge Cruzan's traffic court at Eagle Rock Saturday morning on a charge of exceeding the speed limit at or about the intersection of Eagle Rock road and Colorado boulevard. Mr. Ries was ticketed at thirty-five miles. He pleaded not guilty and the case went to trial, with O. H. O'Connor and J. T. Hanley of Glendale, witnesses for the accused and Officers McMahon and Mercer, as complaining witnesses.

McMahon and Mercer both testified they were in the trap near the bridge when he defendant drove through on February 5. They said they both timed him at thirty-five miles. McMahon said he started after the car, which was an olive green in color. He took the short-cut and came out ahead on Colorado boulevard. He said he stopped one car that had the appearance of being the defendant's, but discovered his mistake in time to overtake Ries. The first car he stopped was a Pierce-Arrow driven by a negro. It was olive green in color.

Abused Officer

He said Ries was abusive when he was stopped, and had come back to the station later, saying "what he would do to the officer." At this point in the testimony Judge Cruzan had to rap for order, as the likelihood seemed good for the officer and the defendant to settle the difficulty without the aid of the court. Ries denied the allegation vigorously and was ably seconded by O'Connor, one of his witnesses. The court finally succeeded in curbing the belligerents and the trial went on.

Ries says he "knew Eagle Rock" and had slowed to nineteen miles. He said he and others were coming from Pasadena and were on their way to an auction sale. O'Connor and Hanley verified the statement. Each said he was a member of the party but in another car, and they were sure that the defendant was not going over nineteen miles an hour. O'Conner said what bothered him was the fact that the officer could not tell the difference between a Negro and a white man. He thought he "must be color blind."

Benefit of Doubt

After considering the evidences and all aspects of the case, Judge Cruzan stated he was going to give the defendant the benefit of the doubt under the circumstances and would fine him but $10 or 10 days. He said:

"By your own statements, you have acknowledged you were exceeding the speed limit, and could be fined, under the law, $25, but I am going to make it $10.

COLLISION HURLS DRIVER THROUGH WINDSHIELD

Pasadena Man Is Injured When Car Crashes Into Telephone Pole

Herrin Culver of Euclid and Walnut streets, Pasadena, was taken to a hospital in that city Sunday morning after taking a header through the windshield of his car when he struck a telegraph pole at Colorado boulevard and Eagle Rock drive. Four other persons were in the car, but none of them were injured in the crash. Culver is said to be badly cut about the face.

According to the story told by members of the party, they were returning from Glendale to Pasadena and were driving at a moderate rate of speed when they struck the pole. They gave no reason for the cause of the accident other than that the driver might have been asleep. The accident happened at 1:45 o'clock in the morning.

The car was owned by D. S. Moore of 2270 Windsor avenue, Glendale. The damage was estimated at $50.

Fair Speeder Fined In Eagle Rock Court

"Mr. McMahon says so," is the reply Miss Helen Gant made to Judge H. I. Cruzan in traffic court at Eagle Rock Saturday morning when asked if she was guilty of exceeding the speed limit, "so I guess it is true."

Miss Gant was different to some who preceded her, in that she offered no excuse other than it was a lovely day, the road was clear and she was "simply coasting along."

The judge considered them mitigating circumstances and asked Miss Gant to pay $10 into the treasury, which she smilingly did.

Data Pertaining to the Cutler Selected Directory Service

The vitals or foundation for this business is the protection we have for its exclusive use. We have 12 U. S. patents with others pending on the subject and 80 claims allowed. Each Claim, in law, is a patent, so, therefore, we have 80 patents allowed in the United States of America, and patents allowed also in Canada, Great Britain and France, and certain rights according to law in other countries. Have you ever seen better protection pertaining to any invention?

Is the mechanical part of this Directory Device workable? Will it do without great expense, that for which it was designed? After 11 months in actual use for a try-out or test it has done far better than we ever expected it would do. The 20 machines we have installed now are used more than 6000 times each day and except for the warping of the cards, never are they out of commission. We are now printing our cards on card board which will eliminate this trouble entirely.

Is there a public demand for a Service of this kind, or does the public want reliable information such as can be placed on the Cutler Selected Directory Service Devices for their free use every hour in the day, 365 days in the year? Where can you go that you are not looking for information? Where do you go that you do not see, at an expense to them of thousands upon thousands of dollars, business and professional people attempting to furnish information to the public, and more so today than ever before in the history of the world? Prove this by picking up a newspaper and counting the space used for publicity of every kind.

Now if we can give you clean, dignified, high-grade publicity in our 150 positions in 74 towns or cities of 1000 or over population in Southern California, at $1.00 per month or less, in positions where you could not get in one position for $100.00 per week, we say if we can do this for you, do you think our service will receive the proper support? We know it has and will.

Can we get our Directory Devices properly located to give the business and professional people and the public the desired information? We can. Of 34 Chambers of Commerce throughout Southern California that we have taken the matter up with pertaining to locations for our devices, all have signed our contract for the installation of this service for a term of 5 years and we can install 1000 or more of our Directory Devices in Southern California just the moment they are completed and select our own positions for them.

The careful investigation of all things pertaining to our service will convince you that this is true and that we have a clean, high-grade, dignified business and that our Board of Directors and the Management generally of the Cutler Selected Directory Service Company, are conservative, honest business men of the highest standing, who have clean records and have lived in Southern California for many years. Compare the capitalization of the Cutler Selected Directory Service Company of Southern California to that of any other company organized in the State of California that has 1-3 the income possibilities, then call at 703 West Sixth street, Los Angeles, and let us go into every angle of this business with you, or go to the Broadway Pharmacy, 400 East Broadway, operate the Cutler Selected Directory Service Device and get the facts pertaining to it.

Hosts to Chapter

The reputation established by the B. I. L.'s of Chapter L of the P. E. O. sisterhood some years ago when they staged a banquet and entertainment at the state convention which received national attention, was fully sustained Saturday evening by a delightful dinner and theatre party with which they surprised the members of Chapter L. It is the custom of the chapter to entertain their husbands and escorts, known in P. E. O. parlance as "B. I. L.'s," and invitations were issued for 6 o'clock Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. U. Emery, 329 North Kenwood street, for the annual event.

By what bribery or cajolery the entertainment committee was induced to surrender their plans for the evening is not known, but, as was evident, the position of hosts and guests was reversed. The company assembled at the appointed hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emery where they were received in the music room and reception hall, the closed doors of dining and living rooms indicating the character of the entertainment. But investigation showed empty rooms and an emptier table.

A. W. Tower, assuming the office of master of ceremonies, requested the surprised members to don wraps and enter the waiting automobiles. Their destination was Glen Inn where at an attractively appointed table a most elaborate dinner was served.

Later the party adjourned to the T. D. and L. theatre where reservations had been made to see Gloria Swanson in "My American Wife."

It was a matter of regret that Mrs. C. D. Lusby, president of Chapter L, was detained at home by illness. The prime movers in the surprise were C. D. Lusby, A. W. Tower, E. U. Emery and Ed M. Lee.

The members and guests were Messrs and Mesdames E. M. Lee, E. U. Emery, A. W. Tower, J. G. Huntley, H. E. Bartlett, Dan Campbell, A. L. Bryant, D. L. Gregg, A. M. Hunt, P. E. Blackburn, A. D. Goss, Mrs. Harriet Randall, Miss Lillian V. Shropshire, Miss Isabel Isgrig and Garfield Jones.

Valentine favors were used for the luncheon appointments. A big bouquet of red carnations occupied the center of the table, while red heart placecards marked the places.

In addition to the honorees and hostesses the company included Mesdames Jane Tuttle, Casper Tuttle, V. M. Hollister and Hattie Halverson of Glendale; Mesdames Rose Adank, Willis Varley, C. Quinby and Leo White of Los Angeles; Mrs. Estella Scharss of Joliet, Ill.; Mesdames Frank Hill, Miriam Hill and Miss Katherine Hill of Hollywood; Mrs. Harry Turner of Yakima, Wash.

Hawaiian Party

Wreaths of marigolds symbolized the beautiful Hawaiian custom of the "Lei" Saturday night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Puffer, Sr., who entertained the members of the Fortnightly Bridge club in a charming and novel manner.

Those of the members who have taken the trip to Honolulu had brought back strikingly to their memories the way the natives meet each boat with these orange-colored paper wreaths indicative of eternal friendship, placing them about the necks of the passengers with a ceremony impressive and unique.

The evening was spent in the playing of games and bridge, after which a buffet dinner was served at a most artistically decorated table whose place-cards were Hawaiian "ladies" and whose favors were various souvenirs from the picturesque islands.

Covers were laid for Mrs. Eva Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Howeth, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Wernette, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Ayars, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Puffer, Sr., Bud Puffer, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Puffer, Sr.

Wed In Riverside

The marriage of Kenneth Erb and Miss Gertrude Champlain, on Saturday afternoon, at the pastorate of the First Congregational church in Riverside, was one of those "quietly conducted affairs" where the bride and groom were whisked to the altar with scarcely a previous announcement to their many friends.

Victor W. Killick and Miss Susan B. Crump, who escorted the couple to Riverside, served as best man and bridesmaid respectively. Mrs. Margaret Reed, the sister of the bride, was also present.

The wedding dinner was served at the famous Glenwood Mission Inn. At the entrance to their hotel, the "newlyweds" were heavily bombed with small bags of rice and the party became very gay.

Following their honeymoon, the couple will return to Glendale, where a semi-formal reception in their honor will be given at the home of Mr. Killick, to which all their friends and acquaintances will be invited.

Mrs. Erb is the daughter of Mrs. Susan V. Champlain, of 441 Hawthorne strett, Glendale, and Mr. Erb is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erb of 1438 West Vernon avenue, Los Angeles.

Real Winter Time

Mrs. George Peck, of 129 West Los Feliz road, has received a letter from her daughter, Mrs. Fred Spear, in Banning, that fairly echoes snow and cold. The letter tells of low temperatures, blizzards, snowdrifts, and all the old familiar joys of eastern winters, so pleasant to read about and to live over in memory, while basking in the warm Californian sunshine—but not so pleasant when you are right up against the real thing, as is Mrs. Spear.

The letter states that the writer's two children, Catherine and Joan, Mrs. Peck's grand daughters, are enjoying the winter weather hugely. To them it is a real pleasure to get out in the snow and tumble around. They don't have to worry about getting heat out of discouraged coal and water out of paralyzed pipes.

CARS SUFFER IN SUNDAY CRASHES

Officer Thrown in Chase of Speeding Motorist on Brand Boulevard

Slippery streets did not cause many automobile catastrophes over the week end in Glendale However, several collisions were reported to the police department.

Miss Myrtle Wilson of 1368 West Thirty-Seventh drive, Los Angeles, paused at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital Saturday afternoon about 2:40 after she had been badly shaken up when her car hit a truck and then a post. She was slightly cut on the forehead.

"I was driving east on Broadway, and, in turning north on Jackson, was struck by a machine driven by Miss Wilson, who was driving approximately 30 miles an hour," asserted C. D. Leasy of 140 West California avenue, Pasadena, driver of the truck. "The crank on my machine was broken. The rear fender of Miss Wilson's machine was bent. Miss Wilson's machine struck a post, damaging it further."

Miss Ruth Swanson of 304 North Verdugo road was a passenger in Miss Wilson's automobile.

About noon yesterday E. Rehberg of 1329 East California avenue was going east on Harvard street and M. V. Lee of 110 East Broadway was going south on Louise street.

"His bumper caught in my front wheel and pulled off one side of the bumper," remarked Mr. Rehberg.

Another collision occurred between automobiles driven by J. McLaughlin of Burbank and Howard B. Morse of 1146 Rosedale court yesterday afternoon.

Wheel Is Broken

"I was driving south on Grand View road and gave proper signal to turn on Glenwood road," declared Mr. Morse. "I was just turning when the car in the rear passed and caught the front end of the car I was driving and forced it into the curb, breaking right front wheel and springing the spindle. The right front wheel of the other car was broken also."

Officer George M. Booth escaped injury about 4:40 yesterday afternoon when his motorcycle was crowded into the curb on the west side of Brand boulevard, near Los Feliz road. He was chasing a Ford driven by David Johnston of 181 South Ellis street, Eagle Rock, and was going about thirty miles an hour.

"I struck the curb and lit in the soft dirt between the curb and the car tracks," reported Officer Booth. "The lights and the front fender and handlebars of my machine were damaged and my pants were badly torn."

GIRL 12, BOY 14, MAY WED; OLD LAW

Much Danger of Unhappy Unions Seen in Present Rule, Say Opponents

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Great Britain's marriage laws, as they apply to the age at which a girl may marry, are to be called up in parliament soon for revision. New legislation that will raise the marriage age limit for girls is to be proposed and the prevalent opinion is that a higher limit will be fixed.

Announcement of this plan revealed the fact that it is legal in England for a girl to wed at the age of 12 years. A boy may marry at 14. In both cases, however, marriage at the ages mentioned cannot be legal without the consent of parents or guardians.

Religious Heritage

The queer law that legalizes marriage at such an early age is more or less a religious heritage, for it is a provision of the English canon law. It is not without sanction in the civil courts, however, for the judicial committee of the privy council sustained the law in several decisions.

Those who favor the early marriage age limit contend that one of its advantages is that, by permitting a girl of 12 to marry, it can legitimatize a child and protect a mother's name.

Opponents point out that this sort of marriage would be in the nature of an emergency measure, unaccompanied by and even without the possibility of, those elements of foresight and self-knowledge which are essential for those about to marry. There is thus considerable danger of unhappy unions and a consequent increase in divorce proceedings.

Cannot Be Voided

A peculiar feature of the existing law is that, once two children of such exceedingly tender ages contrive to wed, the marriage cannot be made void. Should the youthful bride and groom, by means of giving false information to the authorities, succeed in getting married without the consent of parents or guardians, they are liable to prosecution for fraud, but the marriage sticks and cannot be set aside.

Although it would seem that instances of such marriages would be so rare as to make concern over conditions arising from them unnecessary, statistics show that alliances of the sort are not infrequent. Parliament, therefore, will be called upon to give attention to the matter and perhaps revise an ancient law that has stood on British statute books for many years.

ABNER DOBLE SHOWS CAR HERE

Inventor Of Steam Auto Gives Demonstration

ABNER DOBLE

THIS young inventor has improved his already perfect steam motor, say engineers. He is president of the Doble Steam Motors Corporation which manufactures a car which experts claim will completely revolutionize the automotive industry. A late model chassis is on exhibition here.

The motor world of Glendale was agog today over the feats performed by the Doble steam motor car on exhibition until Thursday at the Studebaker salesroom of the Packer Auto Company. The new car is being put through its paces here by Abner Doble himself, inventor of the steamer and president of the manufacturing company, who shows all interested the methods of operation, flexibility and ease of handling.

In less than twenty seconds after the ignition switch is turned on, declares F. G. Cox, fiscal agent of the corporation, who was here today in connection with the demonstration, there is a full head of steam in the boiler.

Public Enthuses

"Many automobiles have been instantaneous successes, said Mr. Cox, but the enthusiastic public reception of the Doble steam motor car, when it first appeared, has never been equalled in any other instance.

"In 1917 the story of Abner Doble's revolutionary achievement began to appear in the most natural and spontaneous way. It was news in the best newspaper sense of the word. Newspapers, magazines and technical publications pictured Abner Doble and the Doble steam motor car.

"Then, just about automobile show-time, came the national advertising—not much of it—less than $10,000 worth all together, and yet it was so dominant that it carried home. With even a revolutionary accomplishment, the results were amazing. The Doble was the greatest sensation that the New York show ever experienced. The first show—the first advertisement—brought the results. Two and a half days later the postoffice refused to deliver the mail, and it became necessary to send cars for it.

"The number of letters received soon passed the 50,000 mark. Seven hundred telegrams arrived from dealers or from those wanting to buy stock in the company. The biggest dealers came direct to the factory with bank references, ready to do business. Orders for more than 11,000 cars were received in ninety days.

Stopped by War

"Then, when just eleven cars had been completed, the United States war priority board stopped manufacture for the period of the war, because of the need for steel in vital war-time industries.

"Now, after five years spent solely in refining the sensational car of 1917, Abner Doble is again manufacturing the Doble steam motor car.

"Today Doble steam motor cars are again in production, being built by the Doble Steam Motors Corporation in San Francisco.

"Transportation has come to be a vitally important subject in our modern life, and the opportunity to witness a demonstration of the hitherto impossible feats which the Doble accomplishes with perfect ease, is one which Glendale people will not want to miss."

PLAYERS DISPLAY DAZZLING DRESS

Cast in Arabian Love Story Design and Produce Own Costume

Glendalians who are anticipating attending the presentation Thursday night, February 15, of "The Arabian Love Story — The Hand of the Prophet" in the Glendale Theatre by the Community Players, have a real treat in store for them in the way of elaborate and unique costumes.

The costumes were on display for the first time at the dress rehearsal held yesterday morning in the theatre and the showing revealed one of the most beautiful Oriental costuming efects ever seen on a local amateur stage. A remarkable fact is that the costumes of the twenty players have been designed and executed by the wardrobe and art committees of the players. Rich colors, exquisitely blended, and the Arabian atmosphere produced by a picturesque fidelity to Arabian costumes, stamp the play as a truly artistic production.

The players are asking for the loan of large cushions for use in the play. They are in need of about fifteen and promise that the cushions will be well taken care of. Those willing to lend cushions should phone Nanno Woods, Glendale 394; Mrs. George Kaeding, Glendale 2683.

Making Better Boys
Interstate Highways
Fletcherize Ideas
Edison Keeps Working

By Gil A. Cowan

BOY SCOUT activity likely interests the parents of one particular boy more than the public at large, but it is a subject of which too much cannot be said.

Scouts are no different than any other youngsters except that they are trained and organized. Their play is directed, to a large extent, by those who know what is best without telling the boys in so many words what they shall or shall not do.

Members of the organization are trained by the offering of inducements, such as merit badges, with wonderful results. They are taught to work, to study, to play and to do things for themselves.

Scouting is a sure cure for the boy problem if it can be applied and the application depends entirely on parents and philanthropists' support. It is an investment—a contribution to the Boy Scouts—not unlike insurance, for, while you likely will never collect anything during your life, you leave a tangible asset to posterity in the shape of straight-going, well-meaning, better men.

Mark you, Warden J. J. Johnson of San Quentin prison states that never yet has a convict come to him who had Boy Scout training. That is one of the best recommendations obtainable, for practically every walk of life is represented on the roster of felons.

The California Highway commission, newly appointed, conservatively starts on a program of completing main trunk highways, according to a letter accredited to Chairman Harvey Toy.

It is to be hoped that the interstate roads will get attention at once, and, from what could be learned at a conference in the capital recently, the road between Yuma, Ariz., and Holtville, Calif., in the Imperial valley, is to be completed.

All transcontinental highways should be kept 100 per cent efficient if it takes half of the appropriation for road improvement. They are actually the real wards of the state, most of them being in desert country where the benefit is solely that of the state.

May the commission remember this.

Ever watch a chemist at work see him tear into a fluid or a piece of steel or a pinch of powder and find its component parts?

Interesting, isn't it, this analytical work? Down in Southern Glendale they have two or three analytical chemists at work all the time.

Well, if you take someone's idea, which is about the same, and analyze it—there is no question but what you will find something of value therein.

There is good in everything, but only analysis reveals how much good and how much not so good.

The man who carefully weighs an idea, looks deep into its causes and foresees its effects, will likely have less trouble in traveling life's rocky road.

Also, he will have something to occupy the mind.

A gun, say a revolver, is a good idea. That is true when it is in the hands of an officer of the law who wishes to enforce his command.

Yet, the same revolver in the hands of an outlaw is bad business.

All of which does not bother the bullets and steel, but it does worry the person facing them.

The idea of revolvers is all right in its cause. But its effect depends on the modus operandi, figuratively speaking.

Likewise, other ideas depend entirely on who handles them and how!

Every city is just as full of ideas as it is people. Glendale has its share, and gathering more fast.

As a result, we literally feast on ideas. However, they should be Fletcherized—chewed over thirty-two times before being swallowed.

Thomas A. Edison yesterday passed his 76th birthday at his Orange, N. J., home. Yet, a little celebration did not interfere with his daily life at all. Saturday he kept at work. Today he is working—working to make electricity work for his fellow man.

Observation of Lincoln's anniversary today also calls to mind the work of another and greater man who arose from the hardy stock of middle western pioneers.

Abraham Lincoln's life is an inspiration to the rank and file of Americans. When only a stripling he told his cousin he would be president—because he could be. It was considered a joke, but young Abe so modeled his life that to this day, yes, forever, and aye, people revere the name of the great emancipator.

COLLEGE WOMEN IN SOCIAL TIME

Varied and Pleasing Program Offers Entertainment at Meeting

for the selection of chairmen of program, membership, scholarship and publicity at the organization meeting and since Mrs. Ferguson was not empowered to select these officers she left it to the decision of the women present as to how the selection should be made.

To Complete Board

By unanimous vote of those present Mrs. Ferguson was given the authority to select the four chairmen, who will complete the board of directors.

The initiation fees and annual dues were also fixed by a motion, that there be an initiation fee of $2 and annual dues of $1.50 payable annually in September.

Mrs. E. B. Sutton of 727 Windsor road is to be hostess at the next meeting of the club the second Saturday afternoon in March. It will be a tea.

Entertainment following the business hour Saturday was arranged by Mrs. Max L. Green and she and those appearing on the program are deserving of much praise for their work. In addition to being of real artistic worth, it was a well balanced program of satisfying length, allowing time for an informal social time later in the afternoon.

Program of Dances

Dance pupils of Miss Edith Lindsay of Hollywood shared honors with Miss Monnie Palmer of the School of Speech of the University of Southern California in the talented and clever program.

It was little Barbara Chandler, considered by Miss Lindsay as a technically perfect dancer for one of her age, who first danced her way into the hearts of the company. The dance was "Playtime," specially written for her, and she made her bow in a cunning blue satin play suit and rolling a monster hoop.

A miniature ball room dancing scene was presented by Peggy and Dick Cartwright. Peggy wore a clever little French gown of orchid satin combined with laces and ruffles, while Dick was a boyish gentleman in a well tailored Tuxedo. These children are extremely talented and have just completed an engagement on the Orpheum circuit with an offer to tour the entire circuit. The success of their appearance Saturday was reflected in the applause and compliments they and their teacher received.

Tour of East

"Pierrette" as interpreted by Miss Elsie Connor was next. Miss Connor is another one of Miss Lindsay's clever dancers. Miss Connor leaves Monday for a tour as far east as Chicago.

Finally Marguerite Swope, disguised as a gipsy girl gave the "Bolero Dance." Miss Swope is equally as artistic as those who preceded her and her artistic work brought added praise to Miss Lindsay's teaching.

The dramatic element of the program was introduced by Miss Bonnie Palmer, who read "The Rose Pink Gown" from Zona Gale's "Friendship Village." Miss Palmer is considered as one of the most talented students in the College of Speech at U. S. C. and she well deserved the compliments she received for her reading. As an encore she gave "Specially Jim."

Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

CHURCHES of Glendale held solemn, impressive services yesterday, attended by large crowds. Pastors preached on varied topics and special music was provided by soloists and choirs. Herewith are presented brief excerpts from sermons and, too, other church news:

Spirit of Discontent Shows Lack of Poise

"How many of us fail to find happiness and pleasure in the work we are doing continually, longing after change!" exclaimed Rev. Philip K. Kemp yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

"This is a clear evidence of discontent and not of a great intellectual power. We are rightly restive in the presence of corruption and immorality, but that is a different matter from mere discontent and desire for change. How many there are who long for summer in the winter season and for winter during the summer months. That eternal spirit of discontent is an evidence of lack of poise and perspective.

"The apostle Paul at the end of a busy life could say that he knew how to be abased and how to abound because, back of his life lay the power of God. This is the more remarkable when we consider the man—a compound of boundless ambition and nervous energy balanced by an equally great trust in God. This was the bed rock of his life. As he said, it was God that worketh in you both to will and to do that which was well pleasing in his sight.

"The cure for restless activity is not in fleeing from the life with men but in feeling the everlasting arms lifting you up and carrying you on in the life of worth-while endeavor."

Orthodoxy Is Guide to Life, Says K. Brooks

A large number of men yesterday morning in the council chamber of the City Hall attended the Men's Bible class of the Presbyterian church.

"It is astonishing that some should charge in these days that orthodoxy leads to unpractical and visionary views of life, that it is nothing but a lot of beautiful talk about the supernatural," asserted Rev. Keith L. Brooks.

"The Apostle Paul was a great theologian yet every doctrine that he teaches emphasizes the necessity of a holy and practical everyday life. He could not teach doctrine and leave conduct to be only a matter of inference.

"Justice requires that there should be a fair proportion between the article and the price we charge for it. On the other hand, to give a sum which is below the due value of the article under the circumstances is to over-reach. A successful skinflint is apt to lull himself to sleep. He has escaped the penalty so long he thinks he can keep on forever. But where human justice fails, divine vengeance will, in due time, supply the deficiency."

Value of Prayer Is Rev. Edmonds Subject

"Prayer Changes Things," asserted Rev. W. E. Edmonds yesterday morning at the Presbyterian church.

"There is not a soul in all this world but can be reached by prayer," he said. "That power is in your hands and mine. It is not for God but for you to say what you will do with it.

"Prayer does change things. Don't worry; don't try to force matters; God does not run by calendar; your prayers shall be answered.

"The new-born church in Jerusalem was entering into persecution and martyrdom. James had been killed; now Peter was seized and thrown into prison with sixteen guards. But their enemies had failed to take God into account. The terrorized little company believed God cared and went to their knees. In answer God sent an angel—one angel. That angel walked right through bolts and bars and touched Peter. The chains fell off and he led him out through opening doors into the city street."

Patriotic Program at Service in M. E. Church

Rev. Henry I. Rasmus and wife are confined to their home at 315 North Jackson street because of illness. He was unable to deliver his address last night at the First Methodist church on "Lincoln, the Man of the Hour."

In honor of members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C., who were present, the song service was of a patriotic nature. The congregation sang "The Flag Without a Stain" and "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" and other Civil War melodies. Miss Isabel Isgrig of Burbank interpreted "Dixie" as a whistling solo. Mrs. H. W. Randall of 429 North Kenwood street played "America, the Beautiful," by Ward, as the organ postlude.

REV. KRINGEL PREACHES

"The Pharisee and the Publican" was the subject of the morning sermon yesterday by Rev. H. O. Kringel before the congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

TALKS IN TEMPLE

Dr. Ameed U. Fareed of Los Angeles spoke yesterday morning at the Masonic Temple on "The Power of Discipleship."

'Wrong Road' Is Theme Of Lutheran Pastor

Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor of the First Lutheran church, spoke yesterday morning on "The Wrong Road," taking his text from Proverbs 14:12, "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

"It is possible for a man to sincerely believe that he is on the right road to a given destination, when, as a matter of fact, he is going in the opposite direction. Many people get on the wrong road looking for something easy to do.

"Another place where some folks get on the wrong road is by judging the religion of Jesus Christ by what they see in some of us poor professors—but what are we? Nothing but poor miserable sinners, saved by grace. They are looking in the wrong place. He is our exemplar. 'Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life.'

"We also want to pay our respects to those people who say that they make no profession and therefore are no hypocrites. What is the fact? This: That every time you talk like that you are making a profession. When you go to church and join in singing the hymns you are making a profession. Some of you have been baptized and confirmed. What are you? You are deserters. I'd rather be a miserable sinner, saved by grace, than belong to your crowd.

"If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

Special Organ Recital And Musical Program

A large audience at the Presbyterian church last night enjoyed an organ recital by Oscar F. Walton of the Bible Institute, Los Angeles.

The three numbers given at the commencement of the services were "Offertoire Newell" and "Abide With Me," both by Ashford, and "Prelude in E flat" by Read. The postlude was Leybach's "Preludium in C Major."

Miss Elizabeth Mottern of 211 North Adams street sang a soprano solo during the evening service. It was entitled "Hold Thou My Hand."

The Presbyterian quartet sang yesterday both morning and evening. The morning selection was Von Berge's anthem "How Holy Is This Place," while in the evening the selections were "O Come Let Us Sing," by Wilson, and "Rock of Ages," by Krantz. Besides Miss Mottern, other members of this quartet are: Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts of 114 West Park avenue, director of music at this church; J. Malcomson Huddy of Pasadena, and Robert F. Maile of Los Angeles.

A baritone solo, "The Ninety-First Psalm," arranged to music by McDermid, was sung by Mr. Maile.

Passion Play Lecture At Christian Church

Dr. Harvey Hadlock, traveler and lecturer, last night at the Central Christian church showed a number of lantern slides illustrating the Passion Play of 1922.

The School of Missions, which met at 6:30 p. m., is divided into five classes which are studying "The Trend of the Races" and "India on the March."

The morning anthem was sung by Mrs. C. C. Stoler of 1262 Justin street. It was Shelley's "God Is Love."

The evening musical program consisted of congregational singing, a solo by Mrs. E. L. Smith of 415 West Elk avenue, and a violin offertory by Miss Evangeline Quackenbush of 1119 East Colorado street. The latter was "The Swan" by Saint Saens.

"Don't Rock the Boat; Don't Be Afraid of Tomorrow" was the subject of the morning sermon of Rev. C. A. Cole.

Young People's Day Observed by Baptists

"Young People's Day" was observed last night at the First Baptist church.

Park Arnold of 635 North Jackson street had charge of the song service, which was of a spirited nature. Others taking part in the service were Willard Keith, Herbert Sutton, Miss Dorothy Rich, Miss Mariam Rich, Miss Helen Cobb, Stanley Walker and Robert Ford.

The morning sermon, which was preached by Rev. E. E. Ford, was entitled, "Betting One's Life."

A large number of scholars, both juvenile and adult, attended the Sunday school of which Roy L. Kent of 522 North Central avenue is superintendent.

VISITOR PREACHES

Dr. W. L. Y. Davis of Pasadena, district superintendent of Methodist churches, last night addressed the congregation at the Central Avenue Methodist church.

The morning sermon was delivered by Dr. V. Hunter Brink.

Four Foundations of Christian Faith Told

"The Big Four" of Christian loyalty is embodied in this text from First Corinthians 16:13: 'Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit ye like men, be strong.'"

Dr. James F. Winnard made that statement yesterday morning at the Tropico Presbyterian church.

"These four characteristics make a full rounded Christian," he continued. "Fashion them into the four sections of a wheel. Remove any one of them and start the wheel turning and it will not go far before there will be a terrible bump. Your greatest Christian success can be attained only by faithful exercise of these elements. Center them all around a definite purpose to glorify God and nothing can stay your progress or growth in grace.

"Paul not only advocated but practiced a strenuous Christian life. It is no wonder that some, who were not likewise minded, said of him, 'Paul, thou art beside thyself.' There are not many who might be so charged because of religious enthusiasm.

Music Is Keynote of St. Mark's Services

A special musical service was held last night at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

The regular vested choir was assisted by Miss Flora Kilpatrick of 122 South Louise street, who sang a soprano solo by Allitson, "The Lord Is My Light," and by Charles A. Comfort of 301 South Central avenue, who sang as a tenor solo Mendelssohn's "If With All Your Hearts." The organ prelude, which was played by Mrs. Joseph Kitt of 449 Pioneer drive, church organist, consisted of Chopin's "Nocturne" and the processional, "Brightly Beams Our Banner." The recessional was "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and the postlude was a march by Ravinia.

The anthem of the occasion was "The Radiant Morn." Several other selections were sung by the choir, also.

The music at this church is under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Parker of 212 North Orange avenue, who directs the glee clubs at Glendale Union High school.

New York Minister in Congregational Pulpit

Rev. Luman H. Royce of New York city occupied the pulpit yesterday morning at the First Congregational church.

Services were held in the basement of the new church building which is now nearing completion.

Two selections, Woller's "Lead Us, O Father," and Hamason's "Spirit of God," were sung by the church quartet, which is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Cavanah of 520 North Kenwood street, Mrs. W. Q. Widdows of 1246 Winchester street and Myron Carman of 363 Salem street.

Miss Marcella Webb of 1229 East Colorado street had charge of the consecration Christian Endeavor meeting.

Fraternity in Charge At Senior Services

The Glendale Delta Kappa Nu fraternity had charge of the Senior society group B of the Glendale Presbyterian church last night. Section one of the fraternity directed the service.

The subject was taken from Psalms 145: 1-21. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Anderson arranged the music. Miss Myra Johns sang "The Touch of His Hand on Mine." Each one attending was tagged with a number and as the numbers were called the various ones took part.

Fraternity members in charge were Earl P. Hammond, Gail R. Kennedy, Orrin Barnes, Leroy Mason and William Weigand.

RENT STRIKES IN LONDON GROWING

Landlords Lose Millions as Tenants Refuse to Pay Big Advances

By DAVID M. CHURCH,
For International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 12. — England forced into a revolution over rents —that sounds absurd, yet it is the very serious possibility which J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Party, sees in the present rent situation in England and Scotland.

There is a full-fledged rent strike on in Scotland. In London there is a rapidly growing rent strike. Scottish landlords are losing millions of dollars weekly in unpaid rents, and English landlords are losing thousands.

During the war Parliament passed an act forbidding increases in rents. In 1920 this act was amended, giving the right to landlords to an increase of from 30 to 40 per cent. This was taken to the courts by tenants, and a House of Lords decision held the amendment granting increases to be illegal.

Labor Party Split

The Labor Party is split upon the issue, which is a vital one to every workingman.

"I am a supporter of law when properly declared," Ramsay MacDonald said, but he charges that the Government is considering retroactive legislation which will permit landlords to keep increased rents which have been paid.

"If the Government persists in its rumored policy of retroactive legislation I can only think that it is deliberately heading for a revolution!" MacDonald declars.

"Personally I see breakers ahead, but my final word to the Government is, 'May your blood be on your own head'!"

This serious view taken by MacDonald is not held by all Labor leaders, but there is no doubt that the situation is fraught with difficulties for the Government because it is closely related to the problem of unemployment. Many of the rent strikers are also unemployed and are enrolled in the unemployed organizations. Any attempts at wholesale evictions of the rent strikers is certain to lead to ugly situations.

CHAPTER XV.
An Indian's Treachery

The Brazos pony had traveled far that day but for only a trifle over ten miles had he carried a rider upon his back. He was, consequently, far from fagged as he leaped forward to the lifted reins and tore along the dusty river trail back in the direction of Orobo.

Never before had Brazos covered ten miles in so short a time, for it was not yet five o'clock when, reeling with fatigue, he stopped, staggered and fell in front of the office building at El Orobo.

Eddie Shorter had sat in the chair as Barbara and Billy had last seen him waiting until Byrne should have an ample start before arousing Grayson and reporting the prisoner's escape. Eddie had determined that he would give Billy an hour. He grinned as he anticipated the rage of Grayson and the Villistas when they learned that their bird had flown, and as he mused and waited he fell asleep.

It was broad daylight when Eddie awoke, and as he looked up at the little clock ticking against the wall, and saw the time he gave an exclamation of surprise and leaped to his feet. Just as he opened the outer door of the office he saw a horseman leap from a winded pony in front of the building. He saw the animal collapse and sink to the ground, and then he recognized the pony as Brazos, and another glance at the man brought recognition of him, too.

"You?" cried Eddie. "What are you doin' back here? I gotta take you now," and he started to draw his revolver; but Billy Byrne had him covered even before his hand reached the grip of his gun.

"Put 'em up!" admonished Billy, "and listen to me. This ain't no time fer gunplay or no such foolishness. I ain't back here to be took—get that out o' your nut. I'm tipped off that a bunch o' siwashes was down here last night to swipe Miss Harding. Come! We gotta go see if she's here or not, an' don't try any funny business on me, Eddie. I ain't a-goin' to be taken again, an' whoever tries it gets his, see?"

Eddie was down off the porch in an instant, and making for the ranchhouse.

"I'm with you," he said. "Who told you? And who done it?"

"Never mind who told me; but a siwash named Esteban was to pull the thing off for Grayson. Grayson wanted Miss Harding an' he was goin' to have her stolen for him."

"The hound!" muttered Eddie.

The two men dashed up onto the veranda of the ranchhouse and pounded at the door until a Chinaman opened it and stuck out his head, inquiringly.

"Is Miss Harding here?" demanded Billy.

"Missy Hardie kleep," snapped the servant. "Wally wanee here flo blekfas?" and would have shut the door in their faces had not Billy intruded a heavy boot. The next instant he placed a large palm over the celestial's face and pushed the man back into the house. Once inside he called Mr. Harding's name.

"What it is?" asked that gentleman a moment later as he appeared in a bed room doorway of the living-room clad in his pajamas. "What's the matter?" Why, gad man, is that you? Is this really Billy Byrne?"

"Sure," replied Byrne shortly; "but we can't waste any time chinnin'. I heard that Miss Barbara was goin' to be swiped last night—I heard that she had been. Now hurry and see if she is here."

Anthony Harding turned and leaped up the narrow stairway to the second floor four steps at a time. He hadn't gone upstairs in that fashion in forty years. Without even pausing to rap he burst into his daughter's bed room. It was empty. The bed was unruffled. It had not been slept in. With a moan the man turned back hastily to the other rooms upon the second floor—Barbara was nowhere to be found. Then he hastened downstairs to the two men awaiting him.

As he entered the room from one end Grayson entered it from the other through the doorway leading out upon the veranda. Billy Byrne had heard footsteps upon the boards without and he was ready, so that as Grayson entered he found himself looking straight at the business end of a six-shooter. The foreman halted, and stood looking in surprise first at Billy Byrne, and then at Eddie Shorter and Mr. Harding.

"What does this mean?" he demanded, addressing Eddie. "What you doin' here with your prisoner? Who told you to let him out, eh?"

"Can the chatter," growled Billy Byrne. "Shorter didn't let me out. I escaped hours ago, and I've just come back from Jose's to ask you where Miss Harding is, you low-livered cur, you. Where is she?"

"What has Mr. Grayson to do with it?" asked Mr. Harding. "How should he know anything about it? It's all a mystery to me—you here, of all men in the world, and Grayson talking about you as the prisoner. I can't make it out. Quick, though, Byrne, tell me all you know about Barbara.

Billy kept Grayson covered as he replied to the request of Harding.

"This guy hires a bunch of Pimans to steal Miss Barbara," he said. "I got it straight from the fellow he paid the money to for gettin' him the right men to pull off the job. He wants her it seems," and Billy shot a look at the ranch foreman that would have killed if looks could. "She can't have been gone long. I seen her after midnight, just before I made my get-away, so they can't have taken her very far. This thing here can't help us none neither, for he doesn't know where she is any more'n we do. He thinks he does; but don't. The siwashes framed it on him, an' they've double-crossed him. I got that straight too; but, Gawd! I don't know where they've taken her or what they're goin' to do with her."

As he spoke he turned his eyes for the first time away from Grayson and looked full in Anthony Harding's face. The latter saw beneath the strong character lines of the other's countenance the fear and doubt that lay heavy upon his heart.

In the brief instant that Billy's watchful gaze left the figure of the ranch foreman the latter saw the opportunity he craved. He was standing directly in the doorway—a single step would carry him out of range of Byrne's gun, placing a wall between it and him, and Grayson was not slow in taking that step.

When Billy turned his eyes back the Texan had disappeared, and by the time the former reached the doorway Grayson was halfway to the office building on the veranda of which stood the four soldiers of Villa grumbling and muttering over the absence of their prisoner of the previous evening.

Billy Byrne stepped out into the open. The ranch foreman called aloud to the four Mexicans that their prisoner was at the ranchhouse and as they looked in that direction they saw him, revolver in hand, coming slowly toward them.

Daily NewsLetter

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad.

TODAY—Chicago mounted police catch violators of the parking laws "with the goods" by scribbling the time of parking in the dust atop their cars, writes Roland Krebs, Chicago correspondent.

TOMORROW—H. C. Hamilton, Atlanta correspondent, writes of Georgia climate and of the co-operative marketing movement in the south.

By ROLAND KREBS
For International News Service

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 12.—The small boy who draws pictures and scribbles aphorisms on dusty window panes may grow up in Chicago to be a dashing, mounted traffic policeman.

The mounted police, who recklessly ride their spirited animals into where the whirlpools of steel and tires are thickest downtown, have devised a cunning scheme to catch napping motorists who disregard the time limit for parking.

Up and down Michigan boulevard these blue centaurs ride, taking note of each motor car when it is parked. The horse leaves the officer just high enough to reach the top of an average automobile. With ease they scribble the time of parking to a minute in the dust atop the machine. It's all very easy, because the tower clock on the Wrigley building, visible up and down the Boul 'Mich,' makes undressing to get at a wrist watch unnecessary.

Not infrequently an outraged motorist arises in all his dignity, might, glory and other qualities which come with ownership of a car and demands proof that he parked at such and such a time. He shrivels up and crawls into his barrel after being asked to look what's written on the roof.

Then again some slicker, wise to the ways of the police, scribbles other hours on his roof or alters the figures put there. But the mounted police (they always get their man, remember) are sort of slick themselves. They have ways of disguising their writing and detecting alterations.

Chicago motorists are a well trained batch. Seldom do they disobey the signals of the traffic squad, which operates in a way strange to most cities. In Chicago the traffic policeman stands on the corner or behind an elevated railway stanchion where he can see without necessarily being seen. At a blast of his whistle traffic moves east and west. Another blast and it goes north and south.

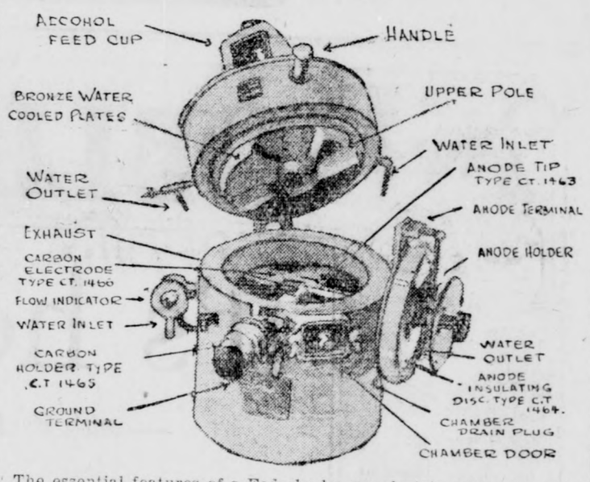
All this and you never see the policeman.

Until you disregard the whistle. Then you see and hear him, too.

RADIO DEVELOPMENT

By LIEUT JOHN R. IRWIN
U. S. AIR SERVICE (RESERVE)

ARC TRANSMISSION



The essential features of a Federal arc transmitter have been dealt with in previous articles. The arc converts energy supplied by a direct current generator into radio frequency energy, causing a flow of sustained high frequency current into the antenna or radiating circuit. The antenna circuit includes the antenna, the loading inductor, the electrodes of the arc flame and the ground connection. A choke coil prevents the flow of radio frequency current from the arc back into the power machinery and serves to sustain and steady the arc flame itself. The frequency of the sustained current flowing in the antenna circuit depends upon the inductance and capacitance of this circuit, and therefore the wave length may be altered by changing the value either of inductance or the capacitance is provided by the antenna itself and is therefore fixed, the inductance of the circuit is varied in making changes of wave length. This is accomplished by changing the connections to the antenna loading inductors.

All parts of the transmitter are stationary except the carbon electrode, which is rotated very slowly by an electric motor in order that it may burn evenly, and is made so that it may be screwed in and out for the purpose of striking and adjusting the arc. In operation, the length of the arc flame is adjusted in this way to secure maximum antenna current and this is the only adjustment required. After the arc has been properly started, only occasional slight adjustments are needed. The carbon electrode does not burn away as in an ordinary arc, but, on the other hand, usually builds up very slowly, the rate depending upon the chemical composition of the gas in the chamber. This very convenient feature makes it possible to operate this equipment for hours at a time with but a few slight adjustments.

The hydrogen gas in the arc chamber is obtained by the decomposition of alcohol, which is fed in, drop by drop, and vaporized by the intense heat of the flame. Ordinary illuminating gas, when available, may be used for this purpose. Kerosene may also be used, but is objectionable owing to the amount of soot that accumulates in the chamber.

An illustration shows in detail the construction and constituent parts of a Federal arc governor.

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

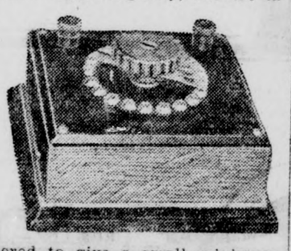
A BRIDGING OR LOADING CONDENSER

Consists of a small sectional mica condenser of ten taps which are thrown in and out of circuit by a fan switch. The sections are not of equal capacity, but are tapered to give a small minimum, increasing to within one-tenth of the full capacity of the last tap. Condenser is mounted, baked and impregnated under vacuum so as to prevent leakage, thus assuring constant capacity values in use. Mounted on a bakelite panel 3-16" thick. Provided with bakelite covered binding posts and bakelite knob 1½" in diameter. Phosphor bronze fan switch and contacts nickel plated and polished, providing a handsome appearance. Oak cabinet has overall dimensions of 5¼"x5¼" x3½" high.



Ideal when used to increase the range of a variable air condenser, or as a bridging condenser where continuously variable values or capacity are not required. It can also be used as a primary or secondary condenser where the tuning inductances are tapped.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND WADDIE'S WATCH

Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy looked from the window of the hollow stump bungalow and began to laugh.

"Ha! Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho! Ho!" laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"What's the matter? What is it that's so funny?" asked Uncle Wiggily, twinkling up his pink nose, for he, too, wanted to laugh.

"It's Waddie Chuck, the groundhog boy—I'm laughing at him," answered Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "He got a make-believe watch for Christmas and it's so comical to see him stop, take it out and look at it and pretend it's keeping time. Come and look at him."

Uncle Wiggily looked from the window across the woodland path to where Waddie stood.

The little groundhog or woodchuck boy would take his dumb

Waddie felt very sad.

watch out of his pocket, look at it, shake it, turn the stem winder and then put it back in his pocket again and walk along, as happy and contented as a bumble bee sipping honey from a molasses jug.

"Ah, it is wonderful to be young," said Uncle Wiggily. "I think I will go out and have an adventure, Nurse Jane."

"Don't worry, you're young enough," laughed the muskrat lady, for truly Uncle Wiggily sometimes acted just like a kid, as Nurse Jane often said.

The bunny rabbit gentleman was hopping along, wondering what sort of an adventure he would have, when, all of a sudden, he reached a bush, and behind it he heard voices.

"Pooh! That's only a dumb watch you have!" said one voice. "It doesn't keep time at all!"

"Yes it does," said the voice of Waddie Chuck. "It's got hands on it and it says 10 o'clock; you see if it doesn't," and through the bushes Uncle Wiggily saw Waddie hold out his Christmas watch to a big bulldog boy.

"Well, it says 10 o'clock all right," agreed the bulldog boy. "But that's all it ever will say."

"It will not! I can make it 11 o'clock, or 12 o'clock or 14 o'clock if I want to!" cried Woodie.

"Yes, if you turn the hands yourself. But it's only a dumb watch and doesn't tick," said the bulldog boy. "Your watch doesn't tick at all—it's only a dumb watch—Ha! Ha! It's only a dumb watch!"

He ran away laughing, while Waddie felt very sad because his watch didn't tick.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Waddie, as he looked at his Christmas watch. I wish I had one that ticked. Then the boys wouldn't say it was a dumb watch. Oh, dear!"

Uncle Wiggily hopped out from behind the bush. He felt sorry for the little groundhog boy.

"If you will come to my hollow stump bungalow, Waddie," said the rabbit gentleman, "I think I can make your dumb watch tick."

"How?" asked Waddie.

"Come and see," invited Uncle Wiggily, with a funny twinkle of his pink nose. And when he and Waddie were at the bungalow the bunny rabbit found a chirping cricket who had come in to stay all winter near the warm fireplace.

"Mr. Cricket, will you get inside Waddie's watch and tick for him so the animal boys will think he has a real one?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Of course I will," said the cheerful chirping cricket, and inside the watch he hopped, Waddie closing the case.

Then, just as did the cricket in the turnip watch of old Barney O'Lynn, the cricket in Waddie's watch ticked away as natural as anything.

"Oh, now I have a real watch and it ticks and I can tell time!" cried Waddie. And just then, in through the door sneaked the Bob Cat.

"Speaking of time," growled the Bob Cat, "it's time for me to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears!"

"And it's time for me to hit you with the broom!" shouted Nurse Jane and she chased the Bob Cat out of the bungalow with the broom stick. Then Uncle Wiggily laughed and so did Waddie. And when next the groundhog boy met the bulldog chap, Waddie held the watch to the bulldog's ear.

"Hear it tick!" cried Waddie.

"Well, what do you know about that!" barked the bulldog boy. "I didn't know your watch was real!" And then Waddie laughed again.

And if the puppy dog doesn't chase his tail under the stove where he can't find it to have a pink ribbon tied on it, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Johnnie's tooth.

WOODCRAFT CLUB WILL BE FORMED

Modern Woodmen to Sponsor Organization of New Lodge Auxiliary

A meeting to organize a Progressive Woodcraft Club, is announced for 8 o'clock Tuesday night, February 13, at the home of Attorney Henry Molz, 363 West Lexington drive.

As the Progressive Woodcraft Club is to be an auxiliary of the Modern Woodmen of America and is sponsored by this organization, the interest of all Woodmen of Camp No. 12886 is centered on the gathering at Attorney Molz' home on Tuesday night.

Founded upon the principles of faith, truth and loyalty, it is said that membership in this new organization, while open only to members of the Modern Woodmen of America, will nevertheless be such as to include only those who will be firm believers in the code of ethics to be adopted, and what is more, will practice it.

The Progressive Woodcraft Club will differ materially from any existing organization and all Woodmen interested are welcome to be present Tuesday night and join in the formation of this club.

Deaf and Dumb Pupils Exchange Love Missives

DELAVAN, Wis., Feb. 12.—When a girl is deaf and can't hear sweet nothings whispered in her ear it's inconvenient but not necessarily fatal. She still can read. Deaf girls of the State school here have been receiving so many love missives from deaf boys of Delavan that school officials have appealed to the Attorney-General for means to stop the by-mail courtships. They contend the girls get so many letters that they let their lessons go to pot. The Attoney-General's office advised the school superintendent, T. E. Bray, that he might compel each girl to sign an authorization to examine her mail.

But, while the officials step gingerly over the thin ice of post office regulations, the two-cent serenades go merrily on. And the letters aren't all going one way, either.

Patriotic Names for Head of Legion Post

STEELTON, Pa., Feb. 12.—"Patriotic—that's me all over, Mabel."

Provided he had a girl with that name, Fourth July Shupp, of this place, could certainly write that famous line to her, for he seems to have all the other necessary qualificatins.

Born on the Fourth of July, which accounts for his name, Shupp served more than a year with the 28th Division in France. Now, to cap it all, he has been elected commander of the local American Legion post.

All of which accounts for his nickname among the other Legion members—"Yankee Doodle."

Planning Subdivision of W. H. Reynolds Property

W. H. Reynolds, who for twenty-five years has resided in the beautiful northwest section of Glendale in the Kenneth road vicinity, has a crew of men busy clearing his tract where streets will supplant rows of orange trees, for he is making ready to subdivide.

Within the next fifteen days he expects his selling agents, Wolter & Shafer, will announce the opening of Reynolds' Orange Grove tract, with offices on Kenneth road just west of Highland avenue.

Messrs. Wolter & Shafer come from Seattle where they have had successful subdivision experience. Already numerous northern friends of theirs have asked for reservations in this desirable Glendale investment.

Police Gazette Shows Prize Winning Float

Glendale's float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses on New Year's day appears in the Police Gazette of February 10, 1923. In this national pictorial publication full credit is given this city's floral peacock as a work of beauty and L. W. Chobe, its designer, says he feels more than gratified in the recognition obtained.

While Glendale cannot realize in dollars and cents the worth of this one advertising stunt, the space it occupies in various publications could not be purchased for $100,000, it is roughly estimated by an advertising man.

That is about 10,000 per cent on the investment of $1000.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THEY WANT TO WRITE

By any chance, do you think you would like to write stories some day, Reader Friend?

No?

What an unusual individual you are!

There are times when I doubt if there is such a person in the world.

Why, when writing stories is such an easy way to fame and fortune, should anyone bother with any of the harder ways?

So and so, you are told, gets $1,000 for one of his short stories. You read one of them. It doesn't strike you as anything remarkable, just simple, little, every-day comments, things you have thought yourself many times, and the plot isn't strikingly original. "I could write as good a story as that myself," you say, "if I had the time." And you plan some day, when you have the time, to sit down and write one and get one of those $1,000 checks. That is, if the editors will pay any attention to new writers. You have heard that it is all graft and pull and having an established name.

Of Course Not

Of course you don't expect to do any systematic studying or to go through any hard training and practicing before you write that $1,000 story.

But here's a funny thing. You go to the concert of a great pianist. You, too, play the piano and suspect yourself of some musical talent. Yet you never fancy yourself being able to get an engagement to play before an enormous audience and receive several hundred dollars as he does, without going through long years of training first. Paderewski has had years of finger exercises. Even after he was the world's greatest pianist he is reported to have said: "If I neglect my finger exercises a day I see the effect, if I neglect them a week the critics know it, if I neglect them a month, the world would know it."

But Writing Is Different

The young artist looks at a great picture and dreams of some day painting one as great. But he knows it will mean years of study of technique and of life, before he can do it.

But the mass of people seem to think writing stories doesn't take any technique or any study of life or even a knowledge of the English language or of grammar.

A woman wrote me that she had had to work hard all her life at housework and that her knees had given out and she couldn't do heavy work and so she thought she would like to write stories. Apparently that was her only qualification.

Expect Hard Work

Mind you, I do not say that this desire to express oneself isn't a perfectly natural one and a perfectly laudable one and that some who have it may not have a spark of the great fire. Nor would an initial ignorance of grammar be a bar sinister if one really did have that spark. What I protest against is the fact that people don't realize that writing stories has its technique just as much as other arts. That it is one thing to be able to think things and quite another to be able to write them. And that long days of labor and night devoid of ease are the portion of the writer as well as of other artists.

Write if you want to. It's a splendid mental outlet and it may some time lead to something. No one can say it won't. But don't expect immediately to win successes for which others have studied and worked and concentrated for years.

And now I want it understood that when I speak of writing I mean the laborious, constructive work of a story. I don't call my own talks writing at all—just talking to you on paper.

British Export Girls Who Have But Slim Chance to Marry at Home

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 12—Great Britain has begun exporting her surplus women.

Although the exportation is not taking place under official direction and is by no means compulsory, the movement is being carried on with the tacit approval of the authorities. It is being directed by a new organization known as the "Home Companions."

The object of the movement is to provide wives for men in those sections of the British Empire where there is a surplus of male population. It is described by those who are directing the emigration as a scheme to "adjust the balance of sexes in the Empire."

Many Extra Girls

There are 2,000,000 surplus women in England, it is estimated. It is estimated that in Australia alone, not to mention other British dominions, there are 200,000 surplus men, and the number is steadily growing because of continued immigration of males to the colonies.

The first "consignment" of girls to Australia will be fifty in number and will sail in February.

Each woman must be more than 20 years old, but not more than 30. Each one also will be required to possess about $500 of her own, half of it to pay her passage to Australia, and the other half to guarantee her ability to return if she does not like it.

"We want girls who are prepared to rough it—not flighty, irresponsible girls who are out for a good time," said Miss Ettie Rout, secretary of the Home Companions, who is directing the movement. "Patriotic, serious-minded girls who are willing to go out to the corners of the Empire for the sake of the Empire—that is the type we want.

Not Easy Job

The Home Companions are being aided in the work by the Society for Overseas Settlement of British Women and by the Feminist Club of Sydney.

STYE (HORDEOLUM)

Did you ever hear that rubbing a wedding ring over a stye as soon as it began to manifest itself would cure it? You will be considerably surprised when I tell you that it may do that, won't you? However, you do not have to use a wedding ring. So if you are single you will not be handicapped. In fact, you do not have to use a ring of any sort. It is the massage that you will give the beginning stye that does the work.

External styes are infections of the sebaceous glands (oil glands) connected with the eye lashes, and the infection is caused by the same family of germs that will cause boils and pimples elsewhere. The family name is staplococcus—if you are interested in names.

These germs are present everywhere, more or less, on the skin and they do not make themselves known unless something happens to the skin to give them a chance to retire and be furnished a plentiful supply of food to live on. These conditions are furnished when there is an injury to the tissues or the resistance is lowered in any way.

There are several things that will give these germs the opportunity to multiply and begin operations on the eye lids. There is lowered resistance due to eye strains, lowered resistance due to systemic diseases such as diabetes, kidney disease and other diseases, and there is general inflammation of the lids. Sometimes long exposure to wind and dust, such as would be had in an open automobile ride, is the lowering factor.

The germs get in the eyelash root, are dammed in, and begin to raise their families. Nature, of course, always on the alert to combat any such invasion, calls out its forces of white blood corpuscles and the anti-disease elements of the blood and tissues, and the war begins.

Now, if you have ever cured a stye by rubbing it with a gold wedding ring, how did it do the work? In the first place, the rubbing caused the hair follicles to open more or less and some of the germs to be ousted. But the chief thing that happens is that more protective blood, with its white blood cells, are brought to the spot and the invaders are killed off in that way.

So it is that there are a few of the so-called Old Wives' methods of helping Nature that have a scientific base for their efficacy. In this case it was not the wedding ring at all, you see, but the massage that was effective.

Now if you feel the soreness and tingling in your eyelids that presages styes coming, begin immediately to massage the lids. Pull out the eyelash over the sorest spot. Bathe the eyes first in hot boracic solution, if you are where you can, and wash your hands thoroughly before massaging; but if you are not where you can do this, begin the massage the moment you notice the stye coming anyway.

Get a small tube of yellow oxide of mercury, one percent, to massage with. This combination of an antiseptic and the massage is more effective than the simple massage. I have known of many styes to be aborted in this manner.

Styes often come in crops. That is, if you have one stye you are very apt to have two or three to a half dozen more. I shall tell you the reason for this tomorrow, and shall talk a little more on the treatment of styes. I will tell you also something of blind styes, and chalazions.

IMPORTANT NOTE

Several hundred inquiries for the weight pamphlet and other material which Dr. Peters has offered her readers through the column, are now held up at her office because the required self-addressed envelopes were not inclosed. If you have failed to receive an answer from Dr. Peters to your request for information, yours is probably one of these envelope-less inquiries, and it will be necessary for you to repeat your request in conformance with the rules of the column.

Colleen Moore Admits Engagement, Report

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12—Hollywood motion picture circles were discussing the reported confirmation of the rumored engagement between Colleen Moore, screen actress, and John McCormick, western representative for a large film distributing company.

Miss Moore was reported, from a reliable source, to have exhibited a diamond ring on the engagement finger to a friend and confided that her wedding would take place in the near future. Miss Moore entered pictures during the pioneer days with the old Triangle company, and since then has appeared in productions for nearly all of the large companies. She was born at Port Huron, Mich., and received her education in the Holy Name convent in Tampa, Florida.

Shrine Provides Clinic For Honolulu Children

HONOLULU, Feb. 12—Work of establishing two hospital wards for the care of crippled children in Hawaii, a project fostered by the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, has been started here following the arrival of Dr. R. N. Happ, an orthopedic surgeon of Boston, Mass., who, accompanied by three nurses, has been sent here by the Shrine for an indefinite period. James MacDonald, who will be the brace-maker for the hospital, is expected to arrive here shortly.

The project was initiated by Imperial Potentate James S. ("Sunny Jim") McCandless of Honolulu and has already resulted in the establishment of several orthopedic units of a similar character on the mainland.

Sixty children here already have been placed under treatment. No charge will be made.

Expert on Children To Open Day Nursery

Experience as a teacher qualifies Mrs. L. B. Kelley of 1225 South Mariposa street to be guiding spirit of a day nursery, just opened at her home. Since receiving permission from the city to open the nursery she announces that she will care for children all day or part of the day and also in the evenings.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna Kent Forbes

FEEDING THE HANDS

It was only the other day that I was talking about the value of plain kitchen lard in making the hands pretty. I advised it as a massage at night, with loose gloves pulled over the hands, so they could absorb the nourishing fat for hours while you slept. It's also very good to rub into the hands after doing housework, and especially after much dishwashing or scrubbing—two things that take the natural oils from the hands, leaving them dry and too easily soiled.

Did I ever write the story of a scrub woman I knew personally, whose hands were always so nice looking? I asked her about that once, knowing her hands were in and out of water for eight hours every day. She said that when she finished work, she washed her hands as clean as possible, then coated them with grease and pulled on old heavy gloves which she wore home. It took nearly an hour to get home, time which was used in feeding her impoverished hands. That's an example to profit by. But, of course, you can use cold cream as a massage, or daintily prepared pastes if you wish to spend lots of money.

Here's the Honey-Almond Lotion, which can be used at any time, since it dries into the skin, bleaching and softening it:

Quince seed,	1-3 ounce
Cold water,	1 pint

Steep 12 hours, strain, add one ounce of sweet almonds which have been blanched, bruised and pounded to extract their milky substance. Add

Glycerine	1 ounce
Boric acid,	30 grains
Oil bitter almonds,	4 drops
Honey,	1-2 ounce

Strain and keep in bottles.

Brown Eyes—Your ankles can be strengthened by massaging the muscles several times each day. A strong solution of either rock salt or sea salt and water, used with the massage will hasten the recovery.

E. L. H.—I shall be glad to mail you the astringent formula if you send me a s. a. e.

V. D.—I agree with you about refraining from regular gymnastic work, when you have a hernia; but since you are suffering for the need of exercise you should consult a competent physical director and have him work out a system of exercises suited to your needs. You can also massage the muscles of the abdomen and in this way reduce the fat without affecting the hernia. Deep breathing is a helpful exercise for the muscles of the back and abdomen.

Sometimes the Skin Grows Hard and Dry

Tomorrow—Answered Letters

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Supper
Baked Sweet Potatoes

Left-Over Pork en Casserole: The housekeeper who served roast pork last Sunday (according to my menus) should still have a few pork left-overs for Tuesday's dinner. Dice these and put them in a baking dish, or casserole. Add two large, pared onions cut fine, one pint of stewed tomatoes, two cups of cooked rice, one-half teaspoon of Worcester sauce and one tablespoon of sugar. Cover all with boiling water and bake two hours in a slow oven. (There should be from two to four cups of the cold, cubed pork for this dish.)

Baked Veal Chops: Boil two pounds of veal chops for five minutes in water containing a little sugar. Drain well, dip the chops in melted bacon fat, and sprinkle with salt and bread crumbs. Put the chops in a baking pan with a small piece of uncooked bacon on each one. Bake in a hot oven till the bacon begins to look crisp, then add two cups of boiling water to the pan. Now cook more slowly, till the chops are tender—about 40 minutes.

Club Ham in the Chafing Dish: This is for Sunday Night's guest supper. Use only the upper part of the chafing dish the "blazer." Put into it three tablespoons of butter and let this melt; then add three tablespoons of chopped onion and one red pepper also finely chopped or a little canned pimento. When these have cooked (not to the browning point, however) add two cups of cream and let continue to cook for five minutes, then add two cups of chopped cooked ham, a drop or two of Worcester Sauce, salt and paprika to suit taste, and the beaten yolks of four eggs thinned with a little milk. Stir in continually till it thickens, and take care that it does not boil. When thick, serve at once on slices of toast. (If you have an electric toaster, one of the guests might make toast right at table, while you are preparing this dish.)

To make the Venetian Eggs (called for in Saturday's menu), simply thicken canned tomato with an egg and serve hot, on toast.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. LIVER HEALTH A THING OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

(Weekly Health Talk No. 18)
(By Drs. Eble & Eble, DS. C.)

UNCLE BEN SAYS: "Eight hours of sleep a day, Nevvy, is all right, but many of our young men try to sleep the same 8 hours they work."

Liver health means a beautiful complexion, a body free from the impurities that dull the sensibilities and cloud the eyes and brain. Liver health means the every day vigor and freshness which enables you to work without fatigue, to look upon any task as easy.

When the liver action is weakened or subnormal, due to weakened transmission of life impulses over spinal nerve lines, there is constipation, that heavy feeling, dull headaches, nausea, and in extreme cases, jaundice and fever. A nerve that is under pressure acts in precisely the same way as a wire that is thinned down or partially cut. Such a wire will transmit electric current, but there will be resistance and heat at the defective point. In the human body when there is disease due to nerve impingement it takes chiropractic vertebral adjustments to restore spinal alignment and remove the nerve pressure.

HEALTH FOLLOWS

THE X-RAY PHOTOGRAPHS SPINAL CONDITIONS ACCURATELY. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING CORRECTS DISEASES WITH SCIENTIFIC PRECISION IN THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

LIVER TROUBLE OF YEARS' STANDING IS CORRECTED

"That others may benefit I wish to add my testimony to the many who have been restored by chiropractic. I despaired of ever getting relief, having tried so many methods without benefit. Liver trouble and jaundice of several years' standing, it seems to me almost miraculous, were conquered by chiropractic vertebral adjustments. I am completely restored to health and am enjoying life as only a well person can. If by this statement I can be instrumental in bringing other sick people to health, I will feel that I have done a lot for humanity."—Mrs. Theo. Barnes, before George Silvertooth, Notary Public, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1351S.

The first rumblings of amateur boxing championships along the Pacific coast for 1923 comes from Portland, Ore. The annual A. A. U. district championships will be held at the Portland Multnomah Athletic club in April, and the amateur glove swingers of Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Vancouver, B. C., and other Pacific northwest points have started training for the event. Amateur boxing in Portland and the northwest is stronger than in any other section of the Pacific coast. The public patronizes the amateur game in that section better than in any other city on the coast.

The Pacific Association A. A. U. district will also hold its tournament some time in April, but no date has been set. The Southern Pacific association taking in the Southern California territory has not sent any date so far, but this section is applying for the holding of the Pacific coast titles.

There is evidently some mixup on the Pacific coast title location. The Spokane A. C. some time ago applied for these events, but no definite word has since been heard from Spokane. A few days ago the Southern Pacific association applied for the events to be held in Los Angeles, and unless Spokane comes to a decision within the next week or so the events will undoubtedly be awarded to Los Angeles.

In the major baseball leagues and the "Class A" minor leagues baseball generally speaking is a big paying proposition. Smaller minor leagues, however, find it hard to get along and the finances in many of them are very precarious. A number of these smaller leagues found themselves in financial difficulties last year. In organized baseball enrolled in the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues there were thirty-one miner league circuits last year, embracing a total of 211 cities of the country. Some of them failed, but the prospects for the 1923 season are that even a greater number of leagues will start the season. How many will fail remains to be seen.

A proposal was advanced recently for a three-cornered track and field meet between the University of Southern California of Los Angeles, University of California of Berkeley, Calif., and Stanford University of Palo Alto. The idea is a good one, but is hardly feasible from the fact that it would be detrimental to the college rivalry natural to Stanford and California. These two colleges are natural rivals and a third team participating in their annual meet would take some of the college rivalry and glamour away from such a meet. Both teams, however, will meet the University of Southern California in dual meets during the coming season.

MAGNATES TO FIX FATE OF BENTON

Pitcher's Return to League Will Be Settled at Meeting Tuesday

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Rube Benton, the left handed storm center of National league politics, will be allowed to sign as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, from where he was whispered out of the major leagues, at the discretion of those who have the famous case at their disposal. His fate will be made known, it is understood, following the annual league schedule meeting tomorrow at the Waldorf.

On that occasion Judge Landis is expected to render a decision. Just what form the verdict will take none but the commissioner himself seems to know.

It is possible Landis will decide to leave the decision to a league vote and the show-down will be interesting. Garry Herrmann is in town breathing fire but declining an interview. He is too busy trying to line up a majority of the club owners on his side of the fence in the event a vote is deemed expedient.

Garry needs at least four votes in addition to his own, for, in case of a deadlock, President Heydler will cast the deciding ballot and its message can be written in advance. Heydler has gone on record as being unalterably opposed to Benton's return to the big leagues, because the latter is said to have used prior information to advantage in betting on the 1919 world series of unhappy memory and subsequently told conflicting stories when summoned on the carpet.

Willie Kamm Signs White Sox Contract

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—The 1923-24 contract of Willie Kamm, $100,000 third baseman last season with the San Francisco Seals, was locked today in the Chicago White Sox safe. The star will go in advance of the rest of the team to Seguin, Texas, to get an early start at spring training.

THE "J" FIGHTERS OF THE SQUARED CIRCLE

From James Figg to Jack Dempsey the letter "J" has played a leading roll in pugilism

To 1923
That's another K.O. for my record and I'm still going strong
J has the longest K.O. list on record
James J. Jeffries, one of the greatest fighters of all time had three J's in his name. But it took a name with two J's in it to defeat him — Jack Johnson
James J. Corbett took the title away from John L. Sullivan
Peter Jackson again we find a "J" in the name of the greatest of colored fighters
All those J's and more have been champions

From the days of James Figg, the first champion prize fighter, in 1719, thundering on down through the years to 1923 and Jack Dempsey, the letter "J" has played a leading role in pugilism.

In the early days Jem about held its own with James as a given name of fighters. It seems a queer trick of fate, but the fact remains that a thumper without a "J" in his monicker was doomed for a short career—and usually it was some gink whose name embodied a "J" that supplanted him, too.

You can follow me down right through the list and we'll fight such scrappers as Jack Broughton, who followed Figg; then Jack Slack, and in 1800 Gentleman John Jackson. Next Jem Belcher, and John Gully followed soon after; then Jem Ward, and John C. Heenan, Joe Goss and Jem Mace—all great fighters and champions in their day each a "J" knuckle artist.

That brings us down to John L. Sullivan and his memorable fight with Jake Kilrain—and we still have the "J" with us. About this time Jem Smith was champion of England and Jack Davis was in his prime. Then the first dark cloud came over the pugilistic horizon in the name of Peter Jackson. And with that "J" in his name, he proved to be the greatest of all colored fighters.

What James J. Corbett did to John L. was a plenty. John, with his one "J," didn't have a chance against Corbett's two. Then James J. Jeffries, well blessed with "J's," retired undefeated, only to be dragged into the ring again to take a thumping from Jack Johnson, a colored gentleman, himself well supplied with "J." It took a Jess Willard to flatten him out, and that brings us down to Jack Dempsey, the "J" of 1923 in the heavyweight class.

But what is true of the heavies, as regards the letter "J," is also true of every other division.

Take the featherweights. There are Jack Skelly, Joe Gallagher, John Gorman, Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Buff.

There were Jack McAuliffe, Jimmy Britt, Jack O'Brien, Johnny Coulon, Jack Britton, Jack Dillon, Johnny Dundee, Jack O'Keefe, Joe Walcott—all champions of one sort or another, with any number of others whose nom de plumes contained the letter "J" and who were top notchers, like Joe Jeannette.

And there's a string of "J's" represented in the names of present day champs and coming champs. Joe Lynch, Johnny Wilson, Jack Sharkey, Joe Beckett, Jimmy Wilde, Joe Burman, Johnny Mendelsohn, Joe Benjamin, Jeff Smith—all belong to the "J" tribe, and more coming!

Floyd Johnson, the new heavyweight, and Johnny Shugrue, Jack Bernstein, Jimmie Kelly—well, the "J's" have it when it comes to pugilism and that's all there is to it.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH, Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank.

Banks and many of the business houses of the United States are closed today in commemoration of the 114th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Lincoln was born February 12, 1809, in a little log cabin near Hodgenville, Larue county, Kentucky. He was the sixteenth president of the United States, being inaugurated in 1861. Four years later, April 14, 1865, the nation was overcome with grief by the news that their president, who had dedicated his life that the "government of the people, by the people and for the people should not perish from the earth," had been assassinated while attending a theatrical performance in the capital city.

H. G. Wells, the eminent English novelist and profound student of history, picks Abraham Lincoln as one of the six greatest men of all history. In an interview for the American Magazine on that subject he says of Lincoln:

"He, better than any other, seems to me to embody the characteristics of America. He stands for your equality of opportunity, for the right and chance of the child of the humbliest home to reach the highest place. His simplicity, his humor, his patience, his deep-abiding optimism, based on the conviction that right must prevail and that things must work themselves out—all these seem to typify the best that you have to give. And they are very rich gifts indeed . . . I think we are safe in including Abraham Lincoln in a list of permanently great figures; not merely because of his own greatness, but because of the spirit of America, which he, better than any other American, embodies and exemplifies."

Lincoln's life was not a happy one. 'Only his indomitable patience and optimism could keep his head above the tide of misfortune which so continually threatened to engulf him. In business he failed, and spent seventeen years paying up the debts of a worthless partner. Politically he was defeated again and again. The girl to whom he was engaged died and he later contracted an unhappy marriage. Yet in the face of these overwhelmingly obstacles he rose from a humble railsplitter to the place of highest honor in the land. The story of his life and his kindly, homely philosophy have filled countless volumes.

Lincoln's mission in life was to advance the interests of his fellow men, regardless of their color, race, creed, nationality or politics. He was the servant of men rather than their master.

Lincoln's early life and training made thrift an inherent quality. He recognized the virtue of thrift and constantly encouraged those about him to save. Among his sayings on this subject is the following:

"Teach economy. That is one of the first and highest virtues. It begins with saving money."

Famous Scotch Golfer Shoots 'Hole in One'

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Shooting a "hole in one" is becoming a habit with Sandy Herd, the famous Scotch golfer, who held the British open championship in 1902.

Sandy set a new world's "hole in one" record at Kingston-on-Thames a few days ago when he did the hole in one for the seventeenth time in his life. He still sighs for fresh conquests, however, and believes he will be able to make his record of "ones" an even twenty before he writes finis to his golfing career.

Herd's desire to add three more to his record is inspired by an offer of an American friend to give him a solid gold putter when he achieves his ambition. He confidently expects to win that putter.

So far as records show, the nearest approach to Herd's performance is that of Jim Braid, who has shot a hole in one eleven times. J. H. Matteson, an Irish amateur, and J. H. Taylor, have had eight each. Harry ardon, although he has won six world's championships, has holed a tee shot only once in his career.

As man grows wiser, he understands that he isn't a body inhabited by a soul but a soul inhabiting a body.

British to Construct Huge Troop Airplane

LONDON, Feb. 12.—During the year it is the intention of the British air ministry to lay down a new giant military airplane capable of conveying fifty infantrymen, fully armed, through the skies at a speed of more than a hundred miles per hour.

The craft is to be constructed entirely of steel, mainly as a safeguard from aerial and anti-aircraft gunfire.

The cabin of the airplane, as planned, will be exceptionally roomy and will carry fifty men in comfort. When not in use the seats fold back against the sides of the fuselage, so that the machine can be used for civil or other purposes when not required for the transport of troops.

Four oil-driven semi-Diesel engines will provide the motive power for this giant, which probably will be taken out to Mesopotamia and used in connection with the protection and governing of the country by the British air force.

In one particular we are not behind other nations in preparedness. We have a fine big pension office.

The days when the smaller institutions of learning, such, for instance, as Center college, can flash across the football horizon like a blazing meteor by reason of its defeats of the "big" teams of the country may soon become a thing of the past.

Stanford university, one of the large institutions which engages in intercollegiate competition, has just issued an edict that none of its teams will compete in any line of athletics with teams of other institutions which are not governed by the same eligibility rules as are recognized by the various conferences.

This means that Stanford would not engage in a match against the Navy team at Annapolis. Stanford, abiding by its eligibility and conference rules, is not permitted to allow its football teams to start practice until a certain date in September. At Annapolis, there is no such restriction, and the boys can get together and begin perfecting their team work at the beginning of summer if they feel so disposed.

It means that Stanford would not consider a game against Center college for the reason that Stanford is not permitted to use first year men on its teams and Center can pile on all the Freshmen or first year men that it has available.

This question has been under consideration for some time.

Princeton thought it over when, two years ago, it was defeated by the Navy. The Navy began training and pointing for Princeton early in the summer, and by the time the October date rolled around, they had had several months to perfect their play, and were in midseason shape, while Princeton had had only a few weeks in which to get together. Princton met with a reverse.

First year men are barred from the larger university squads for the reason that it discourages the importing of athletes merely for the sake of their athletic ability. It is something of an incubus to carry a man a whole year without any return whatever.

Whether or not the action of Stanford will be followed by other universities remains to be seen, but there is every reason why, in self-protection, they should not do so. It manifestly is unfair to match two teams, one of which is absolutely free to do anything it wants, while the other is handicapped through scholastic reservations, time limitations and other rules.

Practically all of the major teams are so governed and the college that does not want to inflict these rules on itself lays itself open to the criticism that it wants a free way to win its games as it chooses. The first year rule, at least, is one that throws a great safeguard about intercollegiate sport.

In congressional districts where the majority is a little radical, politics makes strange red fellows.

RELIC IS CALLED IMPORTANT FIND

Image Discovered in Rocky Mountains May Upset Accepted Theories

For International News Service

DENVER, Feb. 12.—Make way for pre-glacial man, or memories of him!

That's what scientists are doing in temporarily discarding the chronologies of Indians, Mound Builders and even the Aztecs of old Mexico in their efforts to establish, if possible, pre-glacial usage of a rock image unearthed by W. L. Chalmers near Grand Lake, high in the Colorado Rockies. He found the 66-pound stone six feet below the surface while enlarging an irrigation reservoir on his homestead.

Mammoth animals outlined in the stone of blue granite are contemporaneous with the Cro-Magnon period. The flat nose is generally associated with a race preceding the Aztecs, according to J. Allard Jeancon, curator of the Colorado Historical and Natural History Society and at one time special archaeologist for the Bureau of American Ethnology at Washington.

Important 'Find'

"If this stone can be proven genuine it is the biggest find in all anthropological research and antedates anything on the American continent going to establish the remote antiquity of man," continued Mr. Jeancon. "I have never seen such remarkable outlines of dinosaurs and mastodons."

The rock image represents early man sitting and holding a tablet with hands that have but three fingers. On the tablet are hieroglyphics which in a measure resemble signs of the Aztecs, Utes and Mormons. If the rock image is genuine, then all the others are copied from the symbols made by pre-glacial man; if not, then the imitation is unusually compelling Who knows? Scientists in New York, Washington and Santa Fe are trying to decipher these characters, according to Chalmers.

The image, through changes in the consistency of the rock, has become harder than steel. Geologists who have seen the stone say it would be impossible to make these impressions today by rubbing with flint implements. It is fourteen inches high, nine inches across the tablet and about twelve inches through to the back.

Glaciers Still Active

Glaciers were still active in cutting down the Rockies as recently as a few thousand years ago, according to T. M. Van Tuyl, professor of geology at the Colorado School of Mines. He has not seen the image, but has found alternate dark and light-colored banded rocks in the Denver mountain parks near to where the stone was found which, he believes, date back to the Archean period. This indicates the numerous uplifts in the Rockies, several times nearly worn away, and the contention of certain geologists that the stone may date back thousands of years.

In the meantime Chalmers is receiving requests from museums and research societies for the privilege of taking plaster-cast impressions to study the rock image under strong glasses or to borrow the freak stone.

The GLENDALE

Laurette Taylor, who won the hearts of a million people with her famous characterization of the delightful Peg, in J. Hartley Manners' famous play, "Peg o' My Heart," is now seen at the Glendale Theatre in the film version of this dramatic masterpiece, which is directed by King Vidor, one of the ablest of his clan.

One of the most really notable all-star casts assembled in recent months supports the star—Mahlon Hamilton, Nigel Barry, Lionel Belmore, Russell Simpson, Ethel Grey Terry.

The story is of the O'Connells of Ireland and the Kingsworths and Chirchesters of England, and of how a Kingsworth, on his dying bed, tries to atone for the wrong done his sister who had married an O'Connell, by providing in his will for the education of her daughter, Peg, and of the delightful heart comedy that results.

Replete with human interest, stirring with action, flavored with a heart touch that in one moment draws a tear and in the next a laugh, this production is worthy to rank with some of the very fine film classics. It is life itself, life of the rugged sort that stretches from Limehouse, London, to Glasgow, Scotland, and far out to sea.

It is a story of a promise made by a loving son to a dying father, to avenge a great wrong done his mother. This the boy must do, and does, before marrying the girl he loves. A novel twist at the end adds the last kick to a strong picture.

MONEY OF CHINA PUZZLES TOURIST

Visitor Constantly Haggling Over 'Big' and 'Little' Coins in Trading

By EDNA LEE BOOKER
For International News Service

SHANGHAI, Feb. 12. — "Big" and "little" money in China causes many a tourist and griffin (a Chinese tenderfoot) to have brain fag and temporary insanity, to be arrested on a charge of battery and assault, and to yearn for the good old United States silver dollar.

In China a dollar is as elastic as a rubber band and has a swing like the pendulum of the town clock. Much depends upon whether you are on the big or little end of said swing.

A "big" dollar is equal to approximately 150 coppers. But a dime is not equivalent to ten pennies—nothing so simple. A dime may be changed for twelve, thirteen or fourteen coppers, according to the exchange.

A "little" dollar is equal to ten dimes. The difference between a "big" dollar and a "little" dollar is approximately one dime and a flock of coppers.

Then It Starts

The tourist begins to show signs of a brainstorm when he spies a grinning Buddha in a shop which he knows the minute he sees it he must buy for Minnie, who instructed him to bring her "one of them heathen idols" from China.

"This is a very interesting Chinese curio, and I want to purchase it—going to take it to America. What is the price on the tag," he asks the indifferent Chinese salesman.

The Chinese looks blank. He knows that the American is a stranger. He is too polite in his English to be an old China hand.

After much talking the Chinese sees light.

"Oh, me savey—you wanche buy? You talkee me how muchee? I talkee you plopper price ten dollar fifty. Plenty cheap."

The tourist, who does not realize the cheap porcelain or brass god is worth about three dollars, gives the suave grafter ten dollars and five dimes.

Wants 'Big' Money

Oh, no, no, no, master " explodes the shopkeeper. "I talkee you big money. Wanche you pay me fiva dolla six dimes and five coppa. This belong plopper."

In department stores signs are often seen: "Small money accepted up to fifty cents—above, big money." If you wish to buy a magazine marked thirty cents you can pay three dimes, but if marked ninety cents it costs you ten dimes and several coppers.

In order to avoid this constant struggle between big and little money the chit system is used.

If you buy a house and lot you sign a chit. If you take a big party to the local jazz palace for dinner you sign a chit. If you order a new gown from a French shop, or hire a taxi, or buy an ice cream soda, instead of paying cash you sign your name to an I. O. U.

Costly System

The system is wonderful so far as the signing goes. But many a young man finds he has let the chit system go to his head when it comes to paying his bills. Every month the Chinese shroffs make the rounds of the offices and business houses to collect. How those carelessly signed chits do add up! Often it is difficult for a man to leave Shanghai without settling his accounts, for the faithful little shroff will be down at the dock to see him off—presenting his bill and making a scene before the man's friends.

The chits are nearly always paid by check. This means "big" money—far be it from the banks to deal in "little" money—but it saves the endless fighting over a few coppers that always takes place when paying cash.

Wife Crack Shot With Flat Iron, Says Hubby

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 12.—Joseph H. Perry of Yarmouth was arraigned in court here on charges of non-support of his wife. He told Judge Carroll that it was just as possible for a man to live with a lioness or a she-bear as it was for him to try to get along with his wife. He declared that one form of amusement his wife indulged in was throwing fiat irons at him. Her aim was perfect, he declared. Perry was ordered to pay his wife $9 a week.

GIRL WILL DRIVE IN CANINE DERBY

Romance of Woman's Entry In Event Heightens Interest in Race

ASHTON, Idaho, Feb. 12—A bit of romance has heightened interest in the championship American Dog Derby race to be held in the "open spaces" hereabouts on Washington's Birthday.

"Lyd" Hutchison, plucky girl driver, whose exploit last year when she led a party of rescuers through the blizzard-swept fastness of the Targhee Forest, in search of "Smoky" Gaston, brought her national fame, is Gaston's opponent in this year's trial battle. Last year, when "Smoky's" team was put out of commission in a forest battle with a lynx, Miss Hutchison carried his number to a sensational finish. This year she is out for herself. And the race between these two is attracting attention throughout the West.

Both Out to Win

Not only are they out to beat each other, but also to defeat "Tud" Kent, American champion, who will defend his laurels this year. Besides this trio, there are many others. Bill Trude, George Pileer, Olcott Zarn, A. D. Carter, with a dozen of the finest trailsmen in America and the fastest sledge teams in the world, will get away when the starter's gun barks.

So far as the race itself is concerned, the stake is the American championship and a big purse. But the race within the classic—that between Miss Hutchison and the man whose entrance number she carried to national fame last year—who knows what its stake may be?

Others May Enter

Alaska and Canada are both watching the American Dog Derby at Ashton, which has taken its place as the speed event of the "Big Three" of Traildom, the All-Alaskan Sweepstakes and the Hudson Bay Derby being endurance contests. It is rumored that teams from these regions will be sent to try their mettle on the speed course of America. They are the all-absorbing "dark horses."

But Ashton has also produced a few dark horses. Young Zarn's team is making daylight practice runs under wraps and at night is being turned loose in secret time-trials, in which sensational speed has been shown. The champion's team is being trained in secret on the Buffalo River, near Yellowstone Park.

So there are many high lights to the coming trail battle. Zarn is the youngest man ever to enter the classic: Miss Hutchison is the only girl. "Tud" Kent, the champion, is the only man who knows what his team can do, and "Smoky" Gaston, with the backing of the entire countryside around his home at the park entrance at West Yellowstone, is against a determined field.

LAME DUCKS NOW ANNOY PRESIDENT

Defeated Public Men Dislike Leaving Social Whirl in National Capital

By KENNETH W. CLARK
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The open season for "lame ducks" is on in full force in Washington.

The unusually large number of politically unemployed, created by the recent election upheavals, daily besieges the white house for federal "plums" which are in President Harding's power to bestow.

Despite an interested complacency, however, friends close to the president say he plans to turn a deaf ear to the numerous pleas for governmental jobs after March 4, largely because of the sheer physical impossibility of filling posts for each of which there at least a dozen applicants.

The most sought-after "plums" are in the civil service commission, the interstate commerce commission, the federal reserve board, the federal farm loan board and the diplomatic corps.

The blue book is being fingered with utmost diligence by defeated republican congressional candidates in an effort to dig up jobs. Federal posts in the diplomatic corps in far-away lands, which heretofore have had few if any candidates, are now being fought for with intense rivalry. Every candidate is admirably fitted and has the backing of influential chiefs in the party, the president is being told by his new army of office seekers.

Hate to Leave

There are two impelling reasons for this scramble for presidential patronage. The first, and probably the most important, is caused by the necessity for certain defeated members of congress to get positions in order to support themselves and their families. Because of age, or for other causes, these men are not in a position to go back and start life practically anew. They have been too long in public life to make a profitable return to private work.

In the other class fall the wealthy men who enjoy the social life of Washington and do not relish the idea of being forced to leave the receptions, amusements and parties of the official family here. This group, which has been able to bring great pressure upon the president, has been particularly insistent in demands for the "plums."

Condition Critical

To the average American patronage means comparatively little, but in Washington the "political turnover," which threw seventy-five representatives and about ten senators of the republican party out of congress, has created a veritable sensation. It has caused great dismay on Capitol Hill.

Just what the president will do to alleviate the enforced situation cannot be foretold. Perhaps the president himself does not know. It is certain he will make no immediate decision. The problem is admittedly perplexing and unless handled delicately might cause serious rupture within the party ranks.

In the opinion of high administration friends, there is only one course for the president to follow—ignore the pleas of the unemployed and thus avoid any sores or heartaches which might ensue by appointing any of them to posts for each of which the demand is about ten times more than the available vacancies.

Show Wariike Blood of Napoleonic Ancestor

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 12.—George Booth, of Safety Harbor, Fla., a descendant of Dr. Odette Philippe, a noted surgeon in the army of Napoleon I., died at his home recently, following shortly after the death of his wife. Both Mr. and Mrs. Booth had reached an advanced age. About a year ago the town of Safety Harbor attempted to open a street through the Booth property, resulting in a pitched battle between Mrs. Booth, her daughters and the town marshal, who was stabbed with a hatpin and otherwise injured. The marshal died several months ago.

Hawaii Moonlight Aids Californians' Romance

HONOLULU, Feb. 12. — Miss Margaret E. Cobb and Elvin A. Hurlburt had known each other for six or seven years back in Whittier, California, but it took the impetus furnished by Honolulu's wonderful moonlight nights and the soft lapping of the ocean waves on the sands of Waikiki to bring their romance to the matrimonial bureau climax. They told the marriage license clerk this story when they recently stepped up to the window for the legal papers, and followed this action immediately with a marriage ceremony at the Catholic mission.

'Yard Stick' Preacher Draws Church Crowds

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 12—The Church on the Rock, colored prayer house, was crowded to capacity during evangelistic meetings in which "Miss Nora," the "Yard Stick Evangelist," preached.

"Miss Nora" is white, only 43 inches in height, and weighs 80 pounds. Her father, George McClellan, a midget, traveled with Barnum and other shows.

BRAKES WEAR TIRES

Always apply the brakes gently. When brakes are jammed hard, it puts a severe strain on the tires and may cause one wheel to lock and slide, wearing the tread at that point. Carefully judge your distance and momentum and stop by using brakes as little as possible.

Disprove Charges of Dry Agent's Brutality

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—An investigation of the physical condition of Mrs. Joseph D'Auito, alleged to have been beaten by Prohibition Agent C. H. Wheeler in a raid on her home several days ago, revealed that at no time was she about to become a mother and that she had not given birth to a baby, born dead, since that time, according to a report made to United States District Attorney Burke.

Statements had been circulated that she had given birth to a dead baby and as a result was in a serious condition. Because of these allegations a committee of two physicians was appointed by Deputy District Attorney McClelland to make an investigation. The physicians' report, in affidavit form, declared Mrs. D'Auito's condition was due to hysteria.

The coroner's office stated no report had ever been filed with them of a baby born at the D'Auito home.

In the meantime Wheeler has returned to San Francisco.

Although 1,000 persons were in the tent at the time, no one was injured. Many automobiles were damaged and the show postponed until next Saturday.

Two automobiles were destroyed by fire and nearly 100 persons narrowly escaped death near Tacoma late last night when high tension poles collapsed over a distance of half a mile. Live wires enmeshed dozens of automobiles but no injuries were reported.

Gale Upsets Ship

SEATTLE, Feb. 12.—Battered by a forty-mile gale and waves that broke over the end of the pier, the oil-burning ship Hidalgo, 12,500 tons, turned turtle at the Albers Brothers' pier early today.

Captain John Anderson and his crew of twelve men barely escaped from the vessel before it capsized. The vessel carried a full cargo of oats from the Skagit river flats and the damage is estimated by Albers Brothers, owners of the craft, to be in the neighborhood of $25,000.

MERCHANTS URGE OFFICIALS TO ACT

Central Avenue, Between Broadway and Colorado, In Bad Shape, Claim

Editor The Glendale Evening News: Many merchants on Central avenue, between Broadway and Colorado streets, respectfully ask that immediate measures be taken to improve Central avenue in this vicinity, also to eliminate daily drainage from Broadway and Brand west to Central which collects in the street opposite our places of business.

For more than two years Central avenue in the vicinity mentioned has been in deplorable condition, and we have patiently awaited action on the part of the city of Glendale, having called same to the attention of various city officials.

We now ask for action after several automobile wrecks, loss of patronage and continued unsightliness of this principal thoroughfare which savors of rank neglect or indifferent administration on the part of those employed by the city to attend to such matters.

Respectfully yours,
August Ebsen,
Cyrus Goodyer,
John M. Lang,
F. H. Evarts,
B. H. Wood, Manager of Dalys Rock Bottom Store,

CARRIERS STAGE BIRTHDAY PARTY

First Anniversary of Jewel City Branch, No. 1983, Is Huge Success

One year ago, when the local post office became an office of the first class, the postmen organized the branch of the national association of Letter Carriers, known as Jewel City Branch No. 1983.

Since that time the branch has completed its organization and takes its place among the fraternal orders of the city.

W. W. Hunt was the first president of the local branch and on being appointed foreman by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, was succeeded by Harry Fraser, who served for the balance of the term. Oscar W. Wright, well known in the business section, is president this year.

Celebrate Birthday

Saturday night, Feb. 10th, the K. of P. hall, at the corner of Brand and Park avenues, was the scene of Jewel City Branch's first anniversary.

The hall, which had been beautifully decorated earlier in the day, was comfortably filled by the letter carriers and postoffice clerks and their families, in addition to the officials of Glendale postoffice and a number of invited guests from Pasadena and Los Angeles.

The meeting was called to order by President Wright, who, after a short address, turned the jollification over to the entertainment committee. This committee consists of Al Holcomb, Newton Clark and Al Falkner.

The program started with the installation of officers for the Ladies' Auxiliary by visiting auxiliary officers.

The pupils of the Pearl Keller school of dancing delighted the audience with the following numbers:

Kathlyn Sonntag, Pierrette dance; Gould Moore, Pierette dance; Marie Louise Brown, Peter Coquette dance, Spring song dance; Patricia Carline, Patriotic dance; Julia Pelley, Sudian dance; Marjorie Turner, Recitations; Elizabeth Turner, Beatrice Turner, Russian dance, Eccentric dance; Vivian Melone, musical readings.

Program Is Varied

Ben Davis, one of the National Association officers, spoke on recent legislation at Washington, D. C., the headquarters of the N. A. L. C.

O. W. Wright and Newton Clarke sang a duet; Howard Fraser gave a wonderful exhibition of the Hihgland Fling to the tuneful lay of the bag pipes by his daddy, Harry Fraser.

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, in a convincing way told those present just what kind of a force he had to work with him in the Glendale postoffice.

Francis J. Henry kept the audience in an uproar with his infectious laughter and his Scotch stories.

Harry A. James, the popular entertainer and story teller, helped the side ache with some English jokes and stories. Bill Gamble of Glendale and state delegate at large, who will represent California at the Letter Carriers' National Convention to be held in Providence, R. I. in September, gave a short talk. A. S. Wood and his committee proved to be royal providers in the way of refreshments.

Mike Kauffman, postoffice clerk and official pianist for the postal workers introduced Kelley's Shrine Orchestra and "selected jazz" held the audience till the wee small hours had come.

NEW H. S. STARTED

The first cement was poured this morning for the new plant of Glendale Union high school.

Postoffice Clerks to Hold Washington Hop

Cherry trees and hatchets will furnish the keynote of the George Washington's birthday dance that is to be given Wednesday night, February 21, in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce, in order to raise funds for the sick benefit funds of the postoffice clerks of the Glendale office. The birthday of the Father of His Country will be celebrated on the 22d of the month, but the postal clerks and their friends will lead off the night before, without waiting for the official schedule, and then, after their efforts of Wednesday night, they will be able to rest on Thursday.

Kelly's Shrine orchestra has been secured for the occasion, and the guests at the dance will be invited to throw dull care to the winds and to cut loose for an evening's real fun.

WHITE RUSS SEEK HAVEN IN CHINA

In Pitiful Condition, in Need Of Food and Clothing, They Roam Seas

By EDNA LEE BOOKER,
For International News Service

SHANGHAI, Feb. 12. — Two thousand "White" Russian refugees, accompanied by Admiral Stark, of the Russian Navy, are on board nine Russian vessels at Woosung awaiting permission of the Chinese authorities before any of them are permitted to land or the ships are allowed to come up the river to Shanghai.

Six other ships, said to be carrying about 2,000 refugees, are on their way to China and are expected at Woosung shortly.

The fleet sailed from Vladivostok with refugees said to number between 4,000 to 5,000 just before the "Red" forces took Vladivostok, after the withdrawal of the Japanese forces from Siberia and the continued defeat of the White Guard.

Fled For Lives

All on board the vessels, including the nine now at the Shanghai port, are officers and men of the White Guard, their wives and families and officials of the old regime in Siberia who fled for their lives.

They are in a pitiful condition, needing clothing and food.

As soon as the "Whites" found they could not defeat the "Reds" they boarded the Russian ships in the Vladivostok Harbor. The refugees set sail for Gensan, Korea, the Mecca of thousands of other Russian refugees since the "White" debacle in Siberia. Gensan, however, is overrunning with refugees who are suffering for want of food, clothing and other necessities of life.

The additional refugees, under the command of Admiral Stark, found it impossible to land.

The fleet then sailed for Japan and was again forbidden to dock. The commander tried a number of Japanese ports, but in every case the authorities refused, as the refugees are penniless as well as without prospects of employment, and the authorities would not be responsible for them in Japan.

Can't Find Haven

So the fleet is again in quest of a landing place. Before it sailed from Japan the authorities gave the refugees supplies and coal enough to bring the ships to China.

The Chinese authorities are fearful also of the consequences if they permit such a large number of needy men and women and little children to arrive here. Consequently they have refused to permit any to land unless they are guaranteed sleeping quarters of some kind and provision has been made for their support.

It looks as if the fleet of fleeing men and women who have been driven from their homes will try to make Europe.

Glendale Man Injured When Train Hits Auto

M. W. Moss of Glendale and V. C. Leonard of Ogden, Utah, were seriously injured Thursday morning at Pisgah, a flag station near Barstow, when Santa Fe train No. 7 crashed into their car at a level crossing, according to word reaching here. Moss received a fractured skull and a dislocated hip, while Leonard escaped with minor injuries. The car was wrecked.

The accident is said to have been due to the fact that the men had the side curtains on their car up to shut out the storm that was raging at the time and failed to hear the approaching train. They were taken to Barstow by the train crew, and after first aid had been given them they were sent on to the county hospital at San Bernardino.

Bandits Slay Man in Raid on Eagle's Club

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 12.—Several heavily armed auto bandits, wearing hoods and long black robes, early today entered the Eagles' club here, shot and killed William Hope, 35, a miner, on sight, shot the sole off one of the shoes of William Urban, then forced eighteen club members to seat themselves at tables while the bandits looted the place after all telephone wires had been cut. The robbers secured jewelry and cash amounting to $5000 and escaped.

Local Bank Managers Are Vice Presidents

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, D. H. Smith and Herman Nelson, managers of the Brand boulevard and Glendale avenue branches, respectively, were elevated to the rank of vice-presidents, at the same time retaining their titles as local managers.

Mr. Smith was formerly vice-president of the Bank of Glendale, which was merged with and became a branch of the Pacific-Southwest system on August 23, 1920. Since the merger he has managed that branch, being equipped for this responsibility by a banking experience and residence in Glendale covering a period of eleven years.

Mr. Nelson, likewise, has been a banker in and resident of Glendale for a number of ylears, having resided in this city since 1911.
